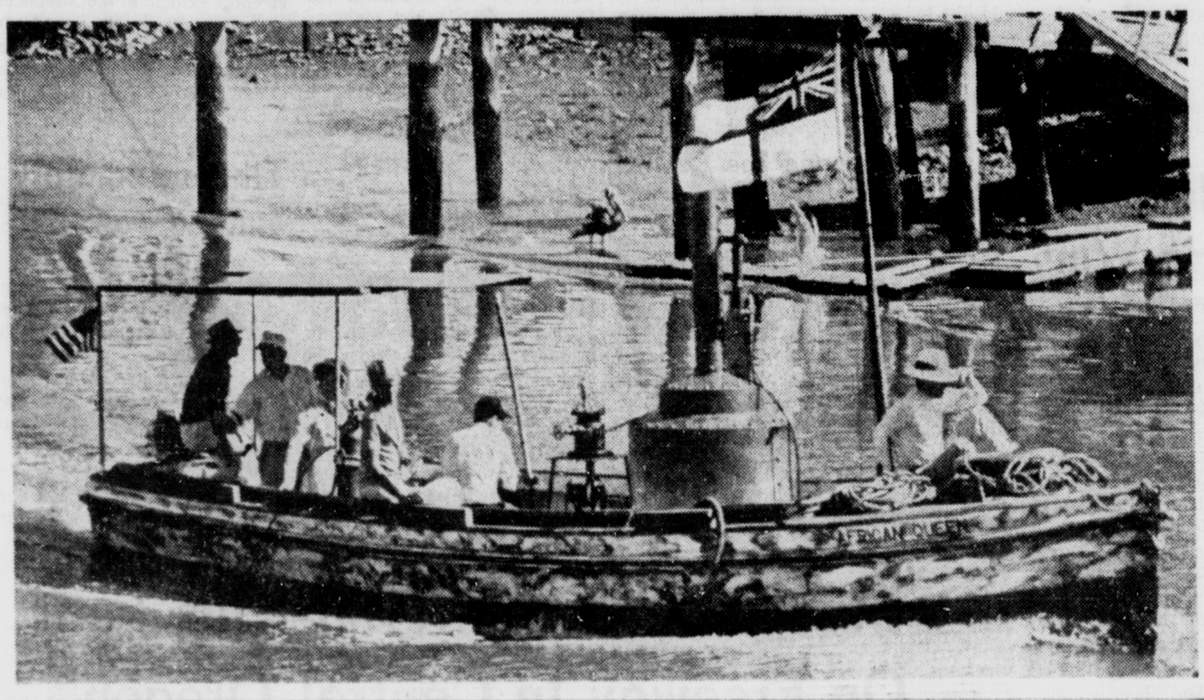
A QUEEN SAILS AGAIN

The African Queen, the river boat which became the subject of a movie and earned the late Humphrey Bogart an Academy Award, chugged up the San Rafael Canal today enroute to San Francisco. The vessel, brought from Africa by a Bogart afficionado, was renovated at San Rafael Marine Repairs. The boat will be used to raise funds for the American Cancer Society. Look-alikes of Bogart and of Katharine Hepburn, his co-star in the movie, were aboard the vessel today. (Independent-Journal photo)



LBJ Hints 'Important' Progress In Nuclear Disarmament Efforts

Reacts To Soviets' Gesture

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — In his first response to a new conciliatory stance by Russia, President Johnson called for an end to the nuclear arms race today and promised he would have an "important" announcement for the nation and world on the subject next Monday.

The president picked a non-political atmosphere to again extend the olive branch. He spoke at the dedication of the new $50-million J. Percy Priest Dam, emphasizing that "along with peace in the world and progress at home, there is no legacy I would rather leave than a permanent program of conservation."

REPLY TO RUSS

Johnson's comments on the arms race were in apparent reply to a speech by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko this week in which the Soviet statesman expressed Russia's willingness to begin preliminary talks on reducing its atomic arsenal, including the anti-ballistic missile system.

The president is to sign a United Nations treaty at 11:30 a.m. Monday banning the spread of nuclear weapons. It is at this ceremony that he apparently intends to reveal the next step in efforts to end de-escalation.

LONGTIME GOAL

Johnson said the U.N. non-proliferation treaty is an achievement the administration has been working toward for more than four years.

"Along with the atmospheric test ban, it stands as a monument to the proposition that men are determined to control the danger of the nuclear age—not be destroyed by them.

"But more is required," he declared. "We must now turn to a task at least equally complex and difficult: to bring under control the nuclear arms race—in offensive and defensive weapons—in ways which do not endanger the security of the United States."

The president was in the Tennessee city only about an hour and a half Saturday, arriving at 11:46 a.m., and returning to Washington at 1:12 p.m.

STATE BANS OPEN BURNING IN MARIN

All Cities, Eight Counties Joined Drive To Prevent More Brush Fire Episodes

Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom announced today that the state Division of Forestry has imposed a complete ban on air burning in Marin and eight other Northern California coastal counties effective at 9:30 a.m. today.

"All of our cities and fire districts in Marin are cooperating in imposing this ban," Bloom said in the wake of seven more grass fires in the county in the last 24 hours.

One of these burned nearly 15 acres and kept San Rafael and Marin County firemen busy for several hours between Terra Linda and Santa Venetia east of Highway 101. No buildings were threatened.

"It will remain in effect until further notice," Bloom added. "It will be on over the weekend, anyway."

Bloom said that low humidity, high temperatures and high winds combined to require the restriction on incinerator and other open burning. All permits issued are canceled and no more will be issued, he said, until forestry officials decide that these conditions have improved sufficiently.

Pet Salon Owner Dies In Flames

Marin's second death-dealing fire in three days took the life of a Mill Valley pet salon owner early today as it swept through his establishment and burned part of an adjoining residence.

Frank May Jr., about 31, whose residence Mill Valley authorities were unable to determine immediately, was found dead by firemen called to the Blue Mist Groomers at 17 Madrona Avenue at 6:29 a.m. today by Patrolman John Orr, alerted to the blaze by a man walking his dog.

DOGS SAVED

Firemen Robert Harder pulled three dogs from the flaming building alive, and one was found asphyxiated.

The fire also damaged the kitchen, bathroom and dining room of the home of Hazel Mann at 162 Throckmorton Avenue, adjacent to and behind the pet salon.

Firemen said they thought the fire started in a back room of the salon, but they were unable to state the cause.

May was a former cab driver in Mill Valley. He was thought by police to have a partner in the salon.

OFFICE DAMAGE

The Western Union office which occupies part of the salon building sustained minor smoke damage, firemen said.

Autopsy on May is pending at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley. His body was not burned and officers speculated that he may have been asphyxiated.

Los Ranchitos housewife Betty S. Alexander died Thursday in a fire that destroyed her apartment at 124 Merrydale Road.

A Lobbyist's Career Ahead For Adam?

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Are some Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors planning to retain Gen. Mgr. James Adam as a $25,000-a-year lobbyist after he retires July 31?

This question was raised yesterday here at the annual bridge board meeting by director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco.

Leonoudakis, long a critic of Adam, said he had heard "some discussion" in Sacramento that Adam will replace Gordon Garland as the district's lobbyist. "There's rumor that Garland is overworked, and won't be interested in the job next year," said Leonoudakis.

Garland has been paid $16,000 a year by the district, for a total of $109,000 since 1961, Leonoudakis added.

His question was greeted by loud guffaws from his fellow directors, but two said "it would

Gate Span Toll Cut Idea To Get Study

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors voted unanimously yesterday to study a cut in the bridge's 25-cent toll.

A cut to 15 or 13 cents was asked by director Stephan C. leonoudakis of San Francisco, but the other eight directors present at the annual bridge board meeting here agreed that only the finance committee should consider whether to make a cut, and what amount could be cut.

The chairman of the finance committee, William D. Hadeler, also of San Francisco, long has advocated a 10-cent toll on the bridge, but never has found much support for his plan on the 14-member board.

Leonoudakis argued that commuters using commutation books now pay only 13 cents per crossing, "and all users should be treated the same."

After the meeting, Leonoudakis told the Independent-Journal he hoped either for a 10-cent toll, or, if a one-way toll system is installed, then a 25-cent toll. Both would eliminate the need for commutation books, which delay traffic because they are bought directly from toll collectors, he said.

Board President John E. Nelson of Mendocino County, referring to San Francisco's refusal to permit more freeways, said "if the political impasse continues, maybe we should just get down to a maintenance kind of idea."

Police Quell Student Mob In Berkeley

BERKELEY (UPI) — Police battled rock-throwing students at the entrance of the University of California late last night. Sixteen persons were arrested.

An estimated 500 students threw up hastily erected barricades near the entrance to the Berkeley campus after police used tear gas to break up a demonstration three blocks away on Telegraph Ave.

The rally was sponsored by the Young Socialist Alliance and 10 co-sponsoring groups. It was held to protest the draft and to demonstrate solidarity with student rebels in France. Passers-by in the busy street stopped to watch and the crowd grew to an estimated 3,000.

Police ordered the crowd to disperse because it was blocking traffic.

Reds' Top Negotiator Recalled From Paris

PARIS (UPI)—Le Duc Tho, high official in the North Vietnam regime and considered the real power behind his nation's delegation to the Vietnam talks, suddenly flew home today.

The abrupt departure of the man many observers consider the key delegate from North Vietnam sparked a flurry of speculation that Hanoi was reviewing its strategy at the conference table.

Tho, sixth-ranking member of the Hanoi Communist Party politburo, was to stop in Moscow and Peking on his way back to Hanoi, apparently to confer with North Vietnam's allies.

Tho refused to comment as he took off from Le Bourget airport on a Soviet jet. An aide said Tho would return "in the near future."

So far during the six-week negotiations Hanoi has been unbending in its demand that the United States halt all bombing of North Vietnam before any meaningful discussions can be held.

Premier Souvanna Phouma of Laos, in Paris for a private visit, demanded the United States not halt completely the bombing of North Vietnam until Hanoi pulled out of Laos the 40,000 troops that Souvanna said were permanently stationed there.

Souvanna said he could not see how the United States could stop the bombing while the North Vietnamese still posed a threat to its flank in neighboring Laos.

Souvanna's stand went even further than any taken so far by the United States. Observers said it may have been a trial balloon to demonstrate to Hanoi how much tougher the U.S. position could get.

Penalty Jury Deciding Whether Preston Lives

By STEPHEN COOK

The life of Kenneth Allen Preston, 20, was in the hands of eight women and four men today following a poignant, personal appeal for mercy from the convicted killer.

The Marin Superior Court jury must close a six-week trial by deciding whether Preston is to live or die in the gas chamber as punishment for the Jan. 12 murders of Curtis and Shirley Ackley in Santa Venetia.

It was Preston, the intelligent, fair-haired boy of a respected Santa Rosa family, who had the last word in the trial.

Edwin Verzyl, the youth's attorney, brought tears to the eyes of two women jurors as he read a letter Preston wrote to the jury from his County Jail cell downstairs.

Preston, who has remained expressionless and silent during his trial, neatly penciled this message:

"I believe that the only way in which I can clear my conscience and atone for my contributions to these crimes is to live as productful and useful a

World Record Jet May Be Flown Today

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI)—A final, last-minute check of the Galaxy C5A, the world's largest airplane, was completed today and mechanics turned the plane over to a five man crew for its maiden flight.

The crew was expected to make several taxi runs, checking all the plane's systems for the last time, before taking off today.

Seamen's Strike To Idle Vessels

NEW YORK (UPI)—A nationwide seamen's strike today tied up nearly 60 per cent of the U.S. merchant fleet, and there were growing indications of support from other unions that could cripple the nation's maritime industry.

The National Maritime Union (NMU) broke off talks last night with representatives of two big merchant marine management groups and struck at midnight.

The walkout was not expected to affect U.S. military cargo.

The strike affects American flagships in U.S. ports. American ships in foreign ports will not be struck.

DEATH SCENE — The Blue Mist Groomers, Mill Valley pet salon, lies ruined after fire swept through it early today, killing part-owner Frank May Jr. Fire burned part of an adjoining residence and inflicted smoke damage on the Western Union office in the salon building.

Tax Surcharge Bite To Be Felt In Paychecks Beginning July 15

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson has signed the tax increase bill wrung from Congress in an 18-month battle. Higher withholding deductions will begin showing up July 15 in the American wage-earner's paycheck.

Johnson signed the 10 per cent boost without ceremony in the White House Rose Garden yesterday, saying "we must now apply the fiscal brakes" to slow down inflationary trends in the economy. (See photo page 2.)

The law imposes higher taxes on 82 million of the 98 million taxpaying Americans and on U.S. corporations. Sixteen million lower income workers will be exempt.

For example, the so-called 10 per cent surcharge will not apply to single persons making less than $1,900 a year, nor will it affect families of four with less than $5,000 annual income.

The bill, first general tax increase since a 1951 levy during the Korean War, was signed with little fanfare. Few congressmen are willing to be closely identified with an income tax increase in an election year.

For individuals, the tax increase is retroactive to April 1, 1968, and extends to July 1, 1969. It expires the same date for corporations, but is retroactive to Jan. 1.

The higher rates will mean 10 cents more withheld from paychecks for every $1 now held back. The taxpayer will be paying the boost from the middle of July. But the increase for the period from April 1 to July 15 will not have been collected by payroll deduction, and will be owed and payable when the taxpayer files his 1968 tax return next April.

Since the boost in effect covers only nine months—75 per cent—of calendar 1968, the total surcharge for the year will be 7.5 per cent of what the year's basic income tax would have been if figured under the old

Sales Tax Extended; Budget Awaits Signing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Californians will continue to pay a five per cent sales tax for the next 90 days.

That was assured by Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday when he signed a bill extending the tax until Sept. 30.

Meanwhile, the governor began studying whether he should cut the $5.71 billion budget sent him yesterday by the legislature. Reagan's office said he planned to sign the budget tonight.

Without the tax extension bill, the rate would have dropped to 4.5 cents on the dollar on Monday.

TAX RELIEF

That would have helped the taxpayer, but hurt Reagan's fiscal plans. He is counting on $155 million to pay for reductions in local property taxes and $38 million more to help finance his budget.

Signature of the bill, said Reagan, "ensures that the legislature will have additional time to consider the vital issue of property tax relief, and take positive action on it."

Reagan's property tax relief bill is bottled up in the Senate Finance Committee, and showing little signs of moving out.

The new budget, highest in the history of any state, is $11 million larger than the one Reagan gave to the legislature in January.

He said final approval, which came yesterday noon after hours of scrapping Thursday, assures him time "to take a close look at the increases which have been inserted and to see where such items can be reduced or eliminated."

Last year, Reagan cut $43.5 million from the budget, but this year, Democratic Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh warned it would be "potentially catastrophic" if Reagan trims items aimed to help residents of big city slums.

Unruh also said that the sales tax extension will produce a surplus of between $50 million to $60 million in the budget—something the administration denies.

Unruh said he will push additional appropriation bills to provide additional aid to urban schools, put unemployed minority youngsters to work in the summer, set up day care centers for working mothers and improve local police departments.

Cathedral's Dean Defies Bishop Order

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Very Rev. C. Julian Bartlett has refused the request of Episcopal Bishop C. Kilmer Myers to resign as dean of Grace Cathedral in a dispute over finances.

Bishop Myers issued a statement last night saying:

"Because of basic differences involving implementation of our plan for development of a common program on the cathedral close (property), I have asked the dean of our cathedral church for his resignation which he has declined to submit. The matter will be referred for resolution to an early fall meeting of the bishop and trustees upon my return from the Lambeth Conference of Anglican Bishops in London in July and August."

DEAN'S REPLY

Dean Bartlett's only comment was:

"I wrote the bishop a personal letter before his statement was issued which he has not yet seen. The content will remain confidential. I trust that the bishop and I will have an opportunity to converse soon."

Myers had ordered the cathedral treasurer to turn over its financial records to the diocesan treasurer's office in what he called a fusion of service.

MERGER PLAN

The 900-member cathedral, which has an estimated $9.5 million worth of property and a $500,000 treasury, is a corporation which is separate from but within the diocese. They would be fused under the plan.

The congregation has asked the bishop to keep the funds of the diocese and cathedral separate pending determination of a legal merger.

The request for the resignation apparently was an outgrowth of the congregation's action.

On June 19, the bishop had told cathedral trustees the fusion would have the "happy by-product of freeing the dean from all administrative responsibilities."

Richmond Has Cool Night

RICHMOND (UPI) — Richmond police said the city was quiet through the night Friday although there were a few reports of minor arson.

Police arrested about 100 persons, mostly juveniles, during the night for curfew violation. However, little trouble was reported in the city, which witnessed scattered violence and looting Wednesday night.

Police Chief Robert Murphy said he would decide later today whether to impose another nighttime curfew. He said he ordered Friday's 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew to "give people extra time to settle down emotionally."

Banjo Role In Pops Concert To Teacher

Doug Karr of San Rafael has been selected to play a solo banjo part in the San Francisco Symphony pops concert under Arthur Fiedler on Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

The solo banjo part is in "Symphonic Picture for Orchestra," an adaptation by Robert Russell Bennett from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Karr, owner of the Karr Music Store in San Rafael, is a professional musician who teaches banjo, guitar, clarinet and saxaphone. He has performed in night clubs and other shows all over the United States.

"My goal all these years," he said, "has been to perform with a major orchestra like the San Francisco Symphony."

Heart Transplant Patients Do Well

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The heart of an apprentice butcher today kept a young seamstress alive in Valparaiso, Chile, and the heart of a motorcycle buff did the same for a French-Canadian father of five in Montreal.

Maria Elena Penaloza, 24, in Valparaiso received the heart of Gabriel Valiz, 20, about two hours after Gaetan Paris, 49, was given the heart of Yvon Bastien, 23. Paris was the world's 22nd heart transplant patient and Miss Penaloza the 23rd.

Houston's two heart transplant patients—Everett C. Thomas, 47, Phoenix, Ariz., and Louis Fierro, 54, of Elmont, N.Y. — will leave St. Luke's Hospital for the first time to see a baseball game tomorrow between the Houston Astros and the New York Mets. Team officials and doctors were conferring on their special needs before deciding where they will sit.

Only two other previous heart transplant patients survive—one in France and one in South Africa.

Paris, Canada's second heart transplant patient, has an excellent chance of complete recovery, his doctors said today. A team of surgeons made the transplant in five hours at the Montreal Institute of Cardiology.

Miss Penaloza, whose own heart had ballooned to four times normal size and was choking off blood to her brain, was given only days to live before the operation. Today she was in a recovery room receiving drugs to impede rejection of the foreign tissue of her new heart. From her bedstead hung a rosary blessed by Pope Paul VI and given to her by Most Rev. Emilio Tagle Covarrubias, archbishop of Valparaiso.

The hospital said she regained consciousness hours after the operation, asked for a drink of water, complained of chest pains and said she would like to go home. The 8 p.m. bulletin said her pulse and blood pressure were strong. Her doctors said this was "remarkably good."

Humphrey Pledges To Seek Civil Order If He Wins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey today called for an end to violence in America and promised if he were elected President one of his priorities would be civil order and civil justice.

"It must be clear that violence, crime, looting, burning cannot be condoned and must be stopped," Humphrey said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Oklahoma State Democratic convention at Oklahoma City. "It must be equally clear that the conditions that breed crime and violence have to be sought out—and then rooted out."

"High on my list are civil order and civil justice," he said. "The fact is that civil order and civil justice are twin imperatives ...that they are interdependent...and that one without the other diminishes America."

Humphrey also said that violence is the enemy of civil rights and civil liberties. "It is the ally of reaction, and can be used as an excuse for not doing the things that need to be done in this country."

In other political developments:

the Minnesota senator suffered a setback to Vice President Hubert Humphrey in both New York state and North Dakota. McCarthy supporters were offered only 15½ of 65 at-large convention delegates from New York yesterday. The senator had demanded at least half the at-large seats because his backers had won 62 of 123 delegate seats in the June 18 primary.

In North Dakota, a straw vote taken on how to split the state's 25-man delegation to the Democratic convention produced a 599-326 ballot for Humphrey. McCarthy again had hoped for 50 per cent.

Nelson Rockefeller — Barnstorming across the country, the New York governor was to fly today to San Antonio, Tex., to talk with Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and the state's GOP delegation. Last night while stopping over at Little Rock, Ark., where he conferred with his brother, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, the presidential hopeful had no comment on reports Tower was ready to give up his favorite son position and throw the Texas delegation to Richard Nixon.

Nixon—The former vice president lashed out at Hubert Humphrey, accusing him of "an inexcusable act of petty partisanship" for allegedly ridiculing the Eisenhower administration. Nixon, who only Thursday had described Humphrey as a "man I respect," criticized the vice president for saying that Eisenhower's tenure was "the peace of just not doing anything."

Airline Fall Victim Sought

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — The highway patrol started a search in south-central Missouri today for the body of an Illinois man who plummeted from an airplane when a door opened at 8,000 feet yesterday.

The man, Gerald Potter, about 55, of Pontiac, Ill., was one of 23 Lions Club members flying in a chartered DC3 two-engine plane from Kankakee, Ill., to a club convention in Dallas. A crew of four was aboard.

The pilot, Miguel Raul Cabeza, 48, said Potter might have opened the door by mistake thinking it was the door to the lavatory. The main door and the lavatory are in a compartment to the rear of the passenger cabin.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Pueblo Deal Hinted

SEOUL (UPI) — A Seoul newspaper said today the United States and North Korea are near a settlement on the seized U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

The U.S. State Department in Washington had no immediate comment.

The Kyunghyang Shinmun, an independent newspaper, said in a front page story that U.S. military authorities in Korea have worked out a plan secretly "to prepare for return of the crew."

The United States and North Korea have held 18 secret sessions on the Pueblo incident at the truce village of Panmunjom.

GI Recovering

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An Army private was recovering at Letterman General Hospital today from gunshot wounds inflicted during an escape attempt from the Presidio stockade, where he was held as an AWOL.

Pvt. Falaniko Himphill, 19, was wounded in the lower abdomen by a single shot when he broke away from armed guards yesterday. He later underwent surgery.

Garbage Fee Debate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city's director of public works has recommended an increase in garbage collection rates, but not as much as scavenger companies have been asking.

Director S. Myron Tatarian said the cost of removing one can-full weekly from the average home should be boosted from the present $1.60 monthly to $1.85. The Sunset Scavenger Co. and Golden Gate Disposal Co. had asked for a flat $2-a-month rate.

Alioto Blasts Lobby

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto says the public ought to inquire into the activities of the auto lobby in Sacramento.

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — A flaming bus - car collision claimed the lives of four persons and injured dozens more yesterday, 13 miles south of here on Interstate Highway 5.

An elderly Canadian couple identified as James McAlpine, 82, and his wife Elsie, 78, both of Unity, Sask., burned to death when they were unable to escape the blazing bus.

Many of the bus passengers were injured, but none critically. According to one of them, Clarence Ryden, 52, Wallace, Idaho, "If it hadn't been for the fire, everyone would have gotten out."

Ryden said there was no warning of the crash and the first indication was the sound of "glass and metal crashing."

TRUCK MAKES UNSCHEDULED STOP

Two men escaped uninjured from this narrow brush with disaster this morning in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor. Their truck, heavily laden with cartons of marine oil supplies for delivery in the harbor, burst through the harbor's main boardwalk shortly after 9:30 a.m. with a resounding crunch of timber that brought yachtsmen running. A precarious net of splintered lumber kept the truck from completing its plunge. Identities of the driver and his passenger were not available from Sausalito police or firemen on the scene. Dope Charges Follow Police Raid On Party

Mill Valley police raided a party at Cascade Dam shortly before midnight last night and arrested five youths on various narcotics charges, Police Chief Dan Terzich reported.

Eight juveniles were cited and 12 others reprimanded and released to their parents, he said.

Terzich said Sgt. John Castellani and Officer Robert Sisk, in plainclothes, infiltrated the group about 11:50 p.m. When the officers identified themselves the young persons ran. But the youths fled into a group of policemen waiting a short distance away.

Booked into County Jail were Edward More Shields, 21, and his brother, Michael, 20, both of 20 Corte Cordova, Greenbrae, on charges of possession of marijuana and possession of narcotics smoking paraphernalia;

All of the juveniles were cited for violation of curfew; two were also cited for possession of alcohol; one for possession of marijuana, and five for being in a place where marijuana was used, Terzich reported.

William John Helms, 70 Wellington Avenue, San Anselmo, was arrested on traffic warrants totaling $246, Terzich said. He was also in the area.

Teamsters Set Vote On Raise

Marin County construction workers belonging to the Teamsters Union are to vote on a proposed three-year contract providing a $1.62 hourly pay increase, including fringe benefits, management negotiators announced last night.

The offered package, including $1.28 in wages and vacation pay plus 34 cents an hour in health, welfare and pension benefits, would bring the total hourly rate, including fringe benefits, to $7.675, the announcement said.

Teamsters Union spokesmen were not available for comment today.

Robert W. Atkinson, president of the Associated General Contractors of Northern and Central California, said the package "represents nearly a 30 per cent increase over the life of the proposed three-year contract."

He said it "would provide a settlement with the Teamsters conforming to the approximate pattern of agreements reached with other heavy construction trades in Northern California in recent days."

The offer is 18 cents higher than the employers' offer of $1.44 made several weeks ago, Atkinson said.

The management negotiaors represented the Associated General Contractors, the California Contractors Council and the Engineering and Graders Contractors Association.

Jury Deliberates Fate Of Youthful Murderer

life in prison as possible.

"The only material I now have with which to do this is my life. I hope only in some way to justify the remainder of my life and in some way to lighten the shame and grief of my parents and perhaps grant them a little pride.

"I pray that those three terrible months of my life will not hold you from showing your mercy. My life is in your hands and I have faith that your judgment will be guided."

Verzyl said the letter was unsolicited.

The letter reading, approved by Judge Joseph G. Wilson, was vigorously protested by Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, who had told the jury that Preston must be killed for the protection of society.

"Kenneth Preston is a burglar, a robber, a sadistic rapist, a kidnapper and a murderer, and he's these things more than once. Anyone can make a mistake, even a serious mistake, but when they repeat and repeat . . ." Bales said.

Verzyl argued that all of Preston's crimes and alleged crimes — involvement in a murder, kidnapping and rape in Santa Rosa, participation in a beating and robbery in Sonoma County, participation in a Santa Rosa motorcycle theft, and the savage killings of the Ackleys — all of these crimes took place in a time span of three months and five days.

Until that time, testimony indicated, Preston lived an exemplary life, earning above average grades in school, treating his family and friends with consideration, never creating a disciplinary problem.

"That's just three months and five days out of a good person's life," Verzyl said. "Mr. Bales has talked a lot about responsibility, but the only responsibility you have is to humanity."

Verzyl, his voice hushed, described San Quentin's gas chamber to the panel and told how a condemned man is brought to the octagonal, hermetically sealed room, and strapped to the chair.

"Then a lever is pulled and a bag of cyanide pills falls into sulphuric acid. Often, the guards, in a last second of mercy, will warn the prisoner to hold his breath for 10 seconds and then breathe deeply. It makes it easier. His chin jerks up and down a few times, then it lands on his chest. The boy's body is then sent back to his mother," he said.

"Ladies and gentlemen, there is not one among you who could see the death of a human being under these circumstances and not come away with a feeling of humiliation.

"You don't wash out blood with more blood. You wash out blood with tears," he said.

Preston was convicted of executing Curtis Ackley with four close shots behind the left ear and of the shooting, stabbing, raping, torture and strangulation death of Shirley Ackley.

Testimony at the murder trial indicated that the Ackleys, aged 28 and 34, returned home the night of Jan. 12 to find Preston and Johnny Lee Sommerhalder, 24, burgling their trailer house.

During the trial's penalty phase, testimony indicated Preston, Sommerhalder and two other members of the Grim Reapers gang were involved in the Oct. 7 shooting of a Santa Rosa Junior College freshman and the gang rape of his date.

William Miller, another Grim Reaper, told the jury that he and Preston beat a Sonoma County ranch hand with their fists, boots and a tire iron the night of Oct. 29, then robbed him.

The Ackley killings, Bales said, were simply the culmination of a crime spree. The Santa Rosa killing and rape just whetted Preston's appetite for violence, Bales said.

"If Kenneth Preston doesn't deserve the death penalty, then who ever should?" the prosecutor asked.

San Francisco Woman Dies Below Span

A woman identified as Ruth A. Snyder, about 50, of San Francisco, plunged to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge at approximately 2:40 p.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol classified the death as suicide.

Her body was recovered by the Coast Guard at 2:45 p.m.

Two passing motorists, San Anselmo patrolman Robert Alberigi and M. M. Glover of 9 Coleman Drive, San Rafael, said they attempted to prevent the woman from leaping after spotting her sitting on a girder as they drove by.

"I yelled at her and reached my arms out towards her, then she leaned forward and fell into the water," said Alberigi.

The plunge was from the east side of the bridge, south of the south tower.

CHP officers said the woman left behind a red and blue wool coat and a purse containing the stub from a one-way bus ticket from downtown San Francisco to the birdge toll plaza.

be a good idea."

The two were George H. Ludy of Inverness, one of Marin's two directors on the 14-member board, and William Moskovitz of San Francisco. Marin's other director, Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato, was absent.

Leonoudakis' question never got an answer. A majority of the directors favored firing Adam last fall, but reneged only because he must retire July 31.

If Adam were hired as lobbyist, predicted Leonoudakis, "that will be the last line in the epitaph over the dissolution of the district."

In any event, he argued, the district expenditures for lobbying "are immoral and wasteful."

The district should rely instead on the eight assemblymen and four state senators representing the six counties in the district, said Leonoudakis.

One of the four senators, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, "is one of the most powerful men in the Senate, and has stood like Horatio at the bridge as the savior of the district," said Leonoudakis.

Noting that the Assembly last week voted 69-0 to pass a bill opposed by the bridge board, Leonoudakis said the vote "proved Garland was completely ineffective." The bill (AB 855), by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, will force the bridge board to seek competitive bidding for all work costing over $5,000.

"Let's start doing something constructive for the public with the public's money," declared Leonoudakis.

Two Sentenced, Third Sought In Bad Check Case

One Richmond man was sentenced to prison and a second given a nine-month county jail term Wednesday in Marin Superior Court.

Sentenced to from one to 14 years in prison for possession of a fraudulent check on Feb. 13 was Henry Charles Kates, 22. A co-defendant, Walter A. Jenkins, 22, was given the jail term and placed on three years probation by Judge Harold J. Haley.

The magistrate also issued a bench warrant for arrest of a third defendant in the case, Mark A. Jenkins, 26, following his failure to appear for sentencing. Bail was set at $5,000.

The trio attempted to bilk the Bank of Marin in San Rafael by cashing a bad check for $500, police said.

Youths Sought To Join Lions' Sponsored Clubs

Lions Clubs in Marin County are forming new youth groups, known as Leo Clubs, according to Don Shank, president of the Novato Lions Club.

The clubs will be part of a global youth organization of Lions International.

Lions hope to get youths between 15 and 20 involved in school safety programs, supervision of recreational facilities, operating a youth center and arranging dances and parties for fund-raising and recreation.

Leo stands for "Leadership, Experience, Opportunity."

Interested youths should telephone their area Lions Clubs for information on organizing, said Shank.

Even-numbered Interstate routes denote east-west direction; odd numbers are north-south.

The revenue package will give $15.5 billion to the Treasury. In addition to the surtax, the new law extends the present 10 per cent telephone excise tax and the 7 per cent automobile manufacturers sales tax. This provides extra revenue, as well as a faster rate of corporate tax payments.

There are other major provisions of the new law:

Federal employment must be reduced. The law requires agencies to leave unfilled one out of every four vacancies as they occur until the June 30, 1966, level of 2,366,317 jobs is reached. This will have the effect of reducing federal employment, through attrition, by some 250,000 jobs.

Welfare restrictions are liberalized. The law delays for one year a freeze approved by Congress in 1967 on federal welfare funds to children under the program of aid to families with dependent children.

The new law imposes income taxes on interest on industrial revenue bonds issued by state and local governments for financing commercial facilities. The new tax affects, however, only those issues over $1 million issued as of May 1, 1968, but with numerous exemptions—such as those for sports stadiums and industrial parks.

Rec Budget Set For Re-Review

The proposed $123,780 parks and recreation budget for fiscal 1969 will be reviewed by the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the community house.

The commission approved the total at a special meeting last Monday night, but will review it again.

The commission will also review the Pacheco School playground program and receive the director's monthly report.

Yacht Disabled, Limps To Safety

An Alaska-bound yacht, which left the Sausalito Yacht Harbor Wednesday, was escorted into Bodega Bay yesterday after becoming disabled in 15-foot seas off the Mendocino County coast.

The 117-foot yacht Hydine, owned by Jack J. Ford of San Francisco and carrying 12 persons, radioed for help Thursday night because of rudder trouble. The Coast Guard said it took the Hydine under tow, but the line snapped and the boat's port engine and steering broke down.

Crewmen got the engines going, however, and the Hydine was escorted into Bodega Bay.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Friends Don't Necessarily Tell The Truth When Jealous

DEAR HELEN:

I've been going with this boy for five months. My girl friend keeps telling me he is cheating on me while I am at work. She said he takes other girls home in his car.

I asked him and he said he did ride a girl home once.

Now, I get an anonymous letter saying I better keep my eyes open as my boy friend is cheating all the time. The letter is typed.

I just can't stand any more. Every day there is something new about him. He says he loves me and somebody is framing him.

Do you think he's a two-timer? — LOONEY BIRD

DEAR LOONEY:

Why not go on the theory that a fellow is innocent until proved guilty. I suppose I should think the same about your girl friend, but just for kicks, I'd check her typewriter against that letter.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

You gave "Pixie in a Fix" what-for because she told her fiance's mother she was shocked by her actions, and no lady would come out of the bathroom wrapped in a skimpy towel when her husband and son and his girl friend were present.

Since when is standing up and speaking out against what is wrong a bad trait? You said Pixie was tactless. I agree. She was offensive and rightly so. Her boy friend and his father should have had enough character and courage to stand beside her, against this lewd woman.

Perhaps the fellow hasn't called back because he is too embarrassed. She might be better off single than to marry a guy who, if he condones such actions, might taint her morals. I sincerely hope she marries someone as courageous as herself and I congratulate her on having something more people need: Backbone. — REAL AMERICAN

DEAR REAL:

What good is backbone if it sticks in everybody's craw?—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I agree Pixie has lots of notact, but the son (her fiance) was probably to blame for this "fix." If he didn't call first and tell his folks they were coming, then the mother probably barged out of the bathroom as most people do — in a towel — thinking no one but her husband was home. After all, what's immoral in that?

Really, there isn't anything immoral in nudity — just in the dirty minds of observers. — ANOTHER ANGLE

DEAR HELEN:

We hear so much about Hippies and Flower Power (or used to). How often do the good teens, the majority, make the news? I have a suggestion that will cure this:

How about kids starting "People Power?" A flower can only bring temporary happiness while it lasts, but the happiness people can bring will last forever. If the world can be changed, and I think it can, only people can do it.

My solution? I ask you not to demonstrate or riot. We can change the world for the better by acting as if we really care, smiling at people, no matter what race or color, getting involved in their problems and resolving that we'll work until they're solved. Please, everyone, consider People Power. It's what's happening. It can work and it will. Just say:—I CARE

It's A 'Love, Love, Love' Theme With Miss California

By JOAN LISETOR

"Love is my favorite subject," said Sharon Kay Terrill dreamily over a shrimp salad at the Alta Mira Hotel Thursday.

Miss Terrill was crowned Miss California of 1968 last week at Santa Cruz. For the talent portion of the pageant she gave an oral interpretation of a Carl Sandberg poem on the subject of — love.

The California-born, Texas-reared miss is in the Bay Area to choose a wardrobe.

"I am having so much fun; I'm still pinching myself, and I still can't believe it's all happening. You should see the beautiful Alaskan seal skin coat I was given," Sharon exclaimed.

Twenty-one-year old Sharon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Terrill of Torrance. She was in her senior year at California State College at Long Beach when she entered the pageant. During her reigning year as Miss California she will not be able to attend school, but postponing graduation for a year does not bother Sharon, who feels the traveling she will do and the people she will meet this year are an even greater education.

She will complete her undergraduate work and then plans to study for a teaching credential in the field of speech and drama.

Miss California finished her salad eating a French roll, but no dessert. She watches her weight by eating sensibly. And she was off for the first fitting of the gown she will wear in the Miss America Pageant, a gown being designed just for her.

SEW SIMPLE

'Budding Genius' With Too Much Courage Asks Advice On Fabrics

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am just a beginner with my sewing, but I am a budding genius with enthusiasm and too much courage. I would like to make a pair of shorts like some I have seen in an expensive sportswear shop but can't find a pattern like them. They were made of a wide striped cotton and the lines formed a "V" at the center front and back and sides. Is it possible to achieve this or am I attempting to do the impossible? MRS. R.M.

DEAR MRS. R. M.:

Your letter was great, and some day you'll end up on the best-dressed list because you have the courage to do the unusual. Since you mention cotton fabric, I am sure this was a regular striped fabric that has been cut on the bias instead of the straight grain.

To find the bias of the fabric, fold over one corner so that it forms a right angle. The fold of the fabric is now the true bias. Place the arrow indicating the straight grain, even with the new fold line. This will form a perfect "V" for the center front and center back of your shorts. I would underline anything cut on the bias and cut the underlining the same and treat the two layers of fabric as one.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am having difficulty finishing the zipper seam for the new kind of zipper. When I stitch the zipper as far as possible, there is still about an inch or so at the bottom of the zipper that I can't get to with my seam. I can't figure out any way to stitch that last inch unless I do it by hand. MRS. D B V

DEAR MRS. D B V:

With the new invisible zippers, the zipper itself will extend about an inch below the seam closing and won't be caught into the seam itself. In order to begin your seam at the exact place your zipper is inserted, you must slide the bar of the special zipper attachment over the side. This permits you to stitch a seam that looks continuous with the zipper closing.

MRS. JOHN LARIMER, Wheaton, Ill., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing tip.

"When making the new dirndl skirts, I have found the following idea works great for those women who do not like the extreme fullness around their waist. Make darts 1-inch wide, tapering to nothing about 6 inches below waist and space them about 7 or 8 inches apart. Then proceed to gather the skirt as usual."

DEAR EUNICE,

When I went to school we were taught to give everything a very sharp press. We had this pounded into our heads with every garment we made. Now the patterns call for a bias strip in the hem, plus underlining, and I am finding it very difficult to get a sharp hem in my dresses. Why do they want this extra material in the hem? It only makes it thicker. MRS. D E H

DEAR MRS. D E H:

I'm happy you wrote to me. It just proves one thing, you must be constantly on your toes with the new changes. No matter when you learned to sew, new fabrics and new styles present new construction.

Today, the sharp ironed look in hems is "out"! We want a rounded, soft appearance to the hem as well as most of the seams. Underlining helps give this look as well as the bias fold of fabric that is often suggested to keep the hem from becoming too flat.

An Hour Of Labor

The cost of individual food items in terms of labor required to purchase them shows a substantial reduction since 1947. For example, an hour of labor today purchases about 70 per cent more beef and about 75 per cent more pork than it did then.

Harbor Board Decides On Dredge Spoils Site

Bolinas Harbor District commissioners have agreed to dump spoils from a proposed lagoon dredging project on a 3.5-acre site west of the lagoon, Commissioner Thomas J. Barfield reported yesterday.

The site, known as the Francisco parcel is owned by the harbor district, Barfield said.

He said the site has been approved by the state Department of Fish and Game as not affecting flora, fauna or ecology.

The harbor district has applied to the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to dredge 60,000 cubic yards of fill from the lagoon. Barfield said protests have been received from the Audubon society, the Nature Conservancy, the Marin Conservation League and three individual property owners.

The board has argued that the dredging is necessary to prevent irreversible silting and damage to the lagoon's circulation system.

Barfield also said he reported to the board on a meeting he had held with the president of the Audubon Canyon Ranch and representatives of the Marin Conservation League. "They seemed less upset, although still protesting, after I explained the project more thoroughly to them," he said.

In response to a series of questions from the audience of more than 40 persons at Wednesday night's board meeting, the board reaffirmed its stand that: The controversial Gilroy plan has "never been adopted by the district, but approved in principle only;" that it is "the aim, goal and desire" of the district to retain as much open water as possible and practical; and that the district is "heartily in favor" of continuing a wildlife or bird sanctuary in any location which is selected as most suitable by a study, Barfield said.

The board also adopted a resolution asking that the State of California establish a study group on the Bolinas Lagoon through its public resources, state lands, fish and game and harbors and watercraft departments.

Discussion of the district's proposed 1968-69 budget, scheduled for last night, was postponed until July 25 at 8 p.m. in the Bolinas Community Clubhouse.

Tam Fire Commission Delays Hiring Action

The Tamalpais Fire Protection District Board took no action Thursday following a special closed session on whether to retain a district employee, Treasurer Carl H. Modell reported.

The board also watched a demonstration of an electro-writer but made no decision to purchase the machine, which would be used to transmit messages between the district's two fire stations, he said.

Council Waits Word On Fire Mains Plans

Belvedere City Council at 8 p.m. Monday in the community center will hear whether enough protests have been withdrawn to permit establishment of a special assessment district for fire mains.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli said yesterday that only a few more withdrawals would be needed by Monday to constitute more than 50 per cent of the property owners, as required by law, on Cliff, Crest and Eucalyptus roads.

A majority of residents in the area protested because of the cost of $63,000 for the new mains. But at the June 4 meeting, Mayor Thomas S. Price announced the cost had been reduced to $55,408, lowering individual assessments from $1,000 to an average of $683.

A reduced budget of $429,290, lower by $34,840 than last year's budget of $464,130, will also be discussed by the council. Cavalli said last week that, although operating expenses have increased 10 per cent, an offsetting increase anticipated for assessed valuation would probably keep the tax rate at its present $1.75.

Jail Term Ordered On Bad Check Charge

A 10-month County Jail term was given Graydon Harr of San Rafael yesterday in Marin Superior Court for having a check in his possession with intent to defraud another person.

Harr pleaded guilty April 16 to having the forged $92 county welfare check on Dec. 18.

House Committee Passes Small Redwoods Park Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to create a Redwoods National Park in California was approved yesterday by the House Interior Committee. The bill would authorize a 26,000 - acre national park to preserve the giant redwood trees in northern California.

The bill will be sent to the House Rules Committee next week to be scheduled for House consideration.

The House committee amended a Senate - passed bill which would authorize a 64,000 - acre park and $100 million for land acquisition.

The House committee members said yesterday action would permit final congressional action on the redwoods bill this year.

Teen's Face Cut By Hurled Bottle

The hurling of a soft drink bottle at a passing vehicle resulted in face cuts to a 17-year-old Atascadero youth near Novato, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

Deputies said the victim, Homer Bledsoe of Atascadero, and two companions were riding in a pickup truck in the 1600 block of Indian Valley Road Tuesday when the bottle shattered a window ventilator of the truck.

Flying glass cut Bledsoe on the lip, nose and forehead, officers said. He was taken to Novato General Hospital for treatment. Deputies said the bottle apparently was thrown by vandals from a wooded hillside near the road.

Woman Enters Denial Of Burglary Charge

Miss Bagette, of San Francisco, is accused of burgling Montgomery Ward and Co. in Corte Madera on March 7, 1967.

FILM REVIEW

Dropout's 'New People' Tale Turns Critic On

By GARY TISCHLER

Down in the heart of the Hashbury, the womb and birthplace of the New People, at the Straight Theater, they are showing a stunning home movie about the New People.

It's a documentary called "Infinity Plus One." It was put together by Wil Garet, twice a dropout from the straight world and a very talented man with a color camera.

First some basic things to get out of the way. The film, which runs about two hours, has all the blessings and glaring faults of the amateur. The sound is terrible and a good chunk of the spoken words is incomprehensible. None of which matters because "Infinity" has an impact and a life all its own. It is not so much a movie as it is a testament.

Garet has proposed to tell it like it is with the New People, the erstwhile Hippies, and he has told it from the inside looking out.

This is the new world the way its inhabitants see it, a world of joyful trips and new awareness and a world strangely beautiful. This is the love world without freakouts, bad trips and free-love freeloaders. And I think the omission of the grey side again doesn't matter becuase the presentation of utopia for real does have something to show us.

Garet starts with a stark confrontation of Sunset Strip flower children and the Los Angeles Police Department and ends with a religious ceremony.

There is a stopoff at Strawberry Fields, the now defunct psychedelic community in the Malibu Hills, an evening's innocently sensual party interrupted by the ever-present specter of the police, who leave meekly, their nightsticks wilted, it seems, by togetherness.

There are stopoffs at the Los Angeles Pleasure Faire, which had its Marin County counterpart last fall, then on to Haight-Ashbury and that holy streetsign shrine, a talk to the Diggers, a hippie wedding.

There is a shiftingly beautiful trip by car and acid north to Oregon, then on to Berkeley for a small be-in, followed by a stunningly beautiful depiction of a young girl's first LSD trip near Bodega Bay.

All of this is in hallucinatory, lyrical style which reaches its peak with the young girl's acid trip. And I think this is where it all becomes familiar. The girl, not exceptionally attractive, suddenly becomes beautiful in purples, greens and blues. Her communion, her response to every real thing she touches is real and convincing; she clutches the sand in a wide-eyed embrace and runs into the wind in sheer joy. It is the kind of thing we watch our children do in envy.

The whole film, despite its technical faults, has this kind of free spontaneity. I imagine you can sit around for weeks arguing its merits, but you may be arguing about the wrong thing. But it says this is the way it is in our world — with no apologies for the missing pieces. It is shocking, but the shock is illuminating, not nauseating. For that reason alone, it is worth looking at.

Now if somebody were to make a turned-on film about the eight-to-five world. . . .

Meeting Changed

ONCE UPON A TIME...

20 years ago, the first owners had their pick of Belvedere's choicest sites. They picked two lots on the East side of the island with a fabulous view and sunshine almost all day long. It took eleven months to construct this fine home, much more time to complete the landscaping and extensive rock work. There are four bedrooms, 2½ baths plus maid's room and bath, a hugh lanai or family room, dining room, and a choice of pool sites. A large view deck and a huge stone patio form a grand entertainment area. $125,000. Exclusive with

BRIDGE AND THE BANKS

Money Goes Where The Interest Is

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors yesterday rejected an appeal by their own president that they give small banks "a break" in competing for district deposits totaling $10 million. (See other bridge board stories on page 1.)

Board President John E. Nelson of Mendocino County argued that the board should not deposit the funds strictly on the basis of the highest rate of interest. Instead, the board should give "an overriding consideration to the financial benefit of the health of the area."

NEW OFFER

Nelson's appeal followed announcement by finance committee chairman William D. Hadeler of San Francisco that the Sumitomo Bank of California, headquartered in San Francisco, had offered 6.25 per cent interest on a $1 million, one-year time deposit of district funds.

The bank may even accept a $2 million deposit, Hadeler reported.

The result of the record rate is to force smaller banks, which cannot afford to lose the deposit, to pay the same high interest, Hadeler explained, and to drain district funds from large banks which are unwilling to compete at the higher rate.

MAJOR LOSER

Some $2.4 million in deposits falls due Monday, said Auditor Gordon E. Dahlgren. The principal loss will be to the Bank of America, which will lose almost $500,000 in deposits to the Sumitomo Bank, said Dahlgren.

An example of a smaller bank forced to compete for the district deposits at the 6.25 rate, he noted, is the Bank of Marin in San Rafael.

The Bank of Marin paid 5.875 per cent on its $100,000 note, among those due Monday, and has had to go to 6.25 to keep the deposit, said Dahlgren.

The rest of the district's $25 million reserve is in long-term federal deposits, noted Dahlgren. Until recent years, he added, all of the district's local time deposits were with the Bank of America, which was the only institution that would help finance construction of the bridge.

Nelson made his appeal at the board's annual meeting here.

He insisted the policy of seeking the highest rate "without other considerations" was "penny-pinching."

'BANK OF PARIS'

"Soon, we'll be loaning out to the Bank of Paris just because it pays some higher rate," declared Nelson. Turning to the Sumitomo Bank, he said "the stockholders are all over in Tokyo."

Keeping the deposits in banks in the six-county district "contributes to the financial stability of the district," asserted Nelson.

The governments of both San Francisco and California "actively seek competition" among banks for their deposits, said director Stephan C. Leonoudakis.

Directors took no action on Nelson's request.

BUDGET TRIMS

In other business, directors voted 8-1 to approve a $3,241,334 budget for fiscal 1968-69.

Deleted from the budget proposed by Gen. Mgr. James Adam was $38,500 for publicity and printing; $28,000 to the Redwood Empire Association, $8,500 to the San Francisco Visitors and Convention Bureau and $5,000 for printing and newspaper advertisements.

Adam, when the budget was reviewed last week by the finance committee, said the advertisements would be "to correct distortions and misstatements in the various news media."

Only nine of the 14 directors were present, only one more than the necessary eight needed to pass a budget. Leonoudakis had made it clear he objected to a $25,000 item for lobbying in Sacramento, so the other seven directors had to give in to director Ben K. Lerer's insistance that the $38,500 be deleted, at least temporarily.

Lerer, a San Francisco director, argued its inclusion now "would open us up to more criticism, such as appeared in the Independent-Journal. Why do we have to continue to make ourselves a target with no reason?" asked Lerer.

Lerer also objected to the $25,000 for lobbying, terming it "a blank check," but later voted to include it in the budget. The 1967-68 budget allocated $16,000 for lobbying, and the entire amount was spent.

Directors agreed to consider the publicity budget as "a committee of the whole" next month, probably on July 12.

Leonoudakis said that the proposed Redwood Empire Association contribution of $25,000, the same as in 1967-68, would bring the district's total contribution to the association to $651,162. "Enough is enough," he declared.

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors also:

TRI-PARTITE — Deferred action for a second time on a proposal that the district withdraw from the Tri-Partite Transportation Committee until the Marin Transit District "puts its house in order."

BRIDGE RUST — Received report from Adam that work on the controversial $320,000 subcontract to repair rusted suspension cables will begin July 15.

SANTA ROSA — Set their second meeting in July at 10:30 a.m. July 26 in the Sonoma County Administration Center, Santa Rosa.

WAGES — Increased the wages of cement masons by 25 cents an hour and cement mason foremen by 50 cents an hour to conform to a recent contract agreement reached by the Northern California District Council of Laborers.

RETIREMENT — Asked Adam to get cost figures to increase retirement benefits.

FIRING — Approved an out-of-court settlement of $3,000 with Paul F. Powell of Mill Valley, who had sued the district for being fired as a bridge painter. Powell, a Caucasian, claimed Adam fired him in April, 1967, because he sided with two Negro painters fired by Adam.

Architect Fees Due Tam Trustee Review

Architects' fees and building costs for the new Tiburon and San Geronimo high schools will be discussed by the Tamalpais High School District board at 8 p.m. Monday in the district office.

The board will also elect officers for the coming year.

MEATBALL — Dani Citti, 5, came as her favorite meal to a costume parade, sponsored by the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department, through that city's downtown area yesterday. The children marched to Memorial Park, where prizes were awarded for the best costumes. (Independent-Journal photo by Pete Thompson)

Gallinas Board Sets Compromise On Sewer Fee

Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District directors have agreed to offer a compromise formula to developers to finance installation of a sewer main to serve the proposed Quail Hill development.

Directors ruled Thursday that the developer, Commerce Clearing House, should pay 60 per cent and the district 40 per cent of the cost of the 12-inch sewer line which will cost an estimated $52,000. The developers had proposed 50-50 cost-sharing, while the district wanted them to put up 77 per cent of the cost.

Board member William E. Brook dissented, contending the present eight-inch sewer line is sufficient to handle sewage from the proposed 80-acre development which will include homes, town houses, professional-administrative buildings and a convention center. The hill is west of the Emporium at the Northgate Shopping Center.

Directors also named Director Alfred M. Petrofsky as board secretary, replacing Mrs. Helen Foulkes, a staff employee who has served as board secretary in her five years with the district. A new secretary is being sought to replace Mrs. Foulkes in the staff post for which she received $725 a month.

Son, Not Daughter

A son was born to the wife (Janet Garcia) of Richard Queirolo of Mill Valley June 23 at Marin General Hospital, not a daughter, as reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal, according to Queirolo.

BLAST OFF FOR SUMMER FUN

Happy youngsters send hundreds of balloons aloft, marking the start of San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department's 1968 summer recreation program. The fifth annual "Operation Blast Off" was yesterday at Albert Park. Return postcards were attached to the balloons, with the youngsters whose balloons are found the greatest distance from San Rafael to receive prizes. Last year's winner was Brian McGuire, 8, of 140 Rollingwood Drive, whose balloon was found 97 miles from San Rafael. (Independent-Journal photo)

Judge Issues Rules For Sale Of Newspaper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Times Mirror Co. must sell the San Bernardino Sun-Telegram within 13 months to a buyer approved by federal court, U.S. Dist. Judge Warren J. Ferguson ruled Thursday.

Ferguson set the time limit, stipulating that the newspaper could not be sold to any chain publishing another newspaper in Southern California, in his final judgment on the three-year-old case.

In essence, Thursday's action merely outlined the procedure Times Mirror, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, must follow in divesting itself of the Sun Co. which publishes the Sun-Telegram.

The original ruling ordering the sale was handed down by Ferguson on Oct. 11, 1967. It was upheld April 22 by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Ferguson held last October that the Times Mirror's 1964 purchase of the Sun Co. for $15 million violated Section 7 of the Clayton Antitrust Act. That section forbids companies from obtaining stock in another firm "where in any line of commerce in any section of the country, the effect of such action may be substantially to lessen competition or to tend to create a monopoly."

Ferguson ruled that competition was not at issue in the antitrust case which the U.S. Labor Department brought March 5, 1965.

What was at issue, he said, was the fact that with the acquisition of the Sun-Telegram, Times Mirror's share of the San Bernardino County market increased from 10.6 per cent to 54.8 per cent on weekdays and from 20.3 per cent to 64.3 per cent on Sundays.

Reorganization Due Monday For Novato Trustees

The Novato Unified School District board will hear a report on changes in income and the opening of two new schools at its reorganizational meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the administration building.

The board will elect new officers for the coming year and select its meeting dates.

It will hear a report from Supt. James G. Bunker on the bills now pending on state and federal aid; purchase science equipment for the new San Marin High School and Sinaloa Junior High School; hear a report on the construction of the two schools, scheduled to be opened in September.

Other items to come before the board include a seven instead of eight-period day at both high schools, and adoption of rules and regulations for the district.

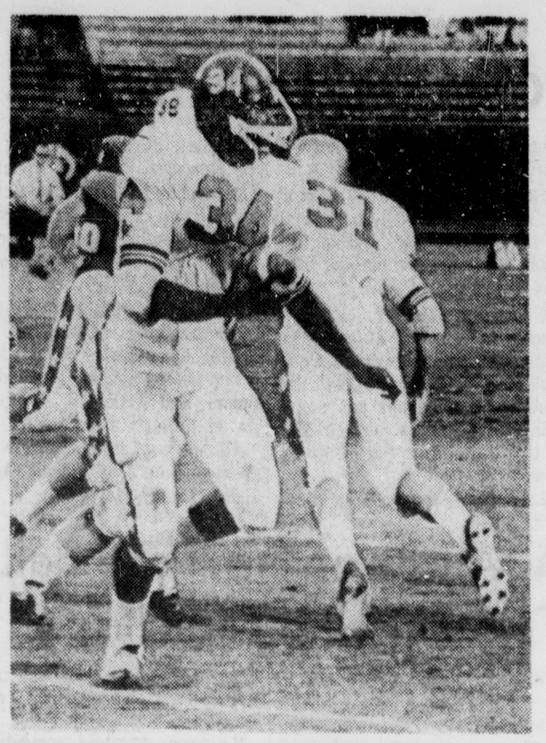
Beban Shakes Off Throwing Blues



AND AWAY HE GOES — West defensive back Jimmy Smith (34) of Oregon returns punt 75 yards for first period touchdown in the Coaches' All-American game in Atlanta, Ga., last night. Smith gets a key block from Dick Anderson (31) of Colorado. West won, 34-20. (UPI Telephoto)

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Beban, king of last fall's college football heroes but snubbed in the first round of the pro draft, has quieted some of the critics who questioned his passing arm.

The Heisman Trophy winner from UCLA displayed a deadly passing touch last night and led the West to a 34-20 victory over the East in the eighth annual Coaches All-America football game.

Beban was only the 30th player picked in the draft by pro teams despite his impressive college credentials, with some pro coaches critical of his passing.

DID SOMETHING

"I wasn't bothered about what people had said about my passing," Beban said, "But I wanted to do something about it.

"I'm satisfied now," added the dark-haired youngster who will play in the College All-Star game in Chicago later this summer before joining the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

Beban hit on 15 of 20 passes for 222 yards and two touchdowns, and his second scoring strike cracked a 20-20 tie in the game watched by a crowd of 21,120 in 80-degree weather.

The go-ahead touchdown was a 44-yard toss to Arizona State's Ken Dyer.

"We had busted a play on defense," East Coach John Pont of Indiana said. "Beban is such a good quarterback he saw his man open and took advantage of us."

CSONKA BUSY

Beban had thrown a 29-yard touchdown pass to Tulsa's Rick Eber earlier in the explosive game which started with a 77-yard punt return by Jimmy Smith of Oregon which gave the West a 7-0 lead.

Minnesota's John Williams recovered a teammate's fumble in the end zone for another touchdown for the West, and quarterback Billy Stevens of Texas El Paso added the clincher in the final minutes on a one-yard plunge.

Larry Csonka, burly Syracuse fullback, and quarterback Greg Landry of Massachusetts were the standouts for the East. Csonka rushed 26 times—a record for the game—and gained 88 yards. He also caught three passes for 41 yards.

He scored twice on plunges and was named the game's most valuable player, an award Beban said "he probably deserved."

SCORING RECORD

Landry hit on 16 of 24 throws for 160 yards, and scored the East's other touchdown.

The score was tied 7-7 and 20-20 before Beban fired a fourth-quarter surge that threw the eight-year series into a 4-4 tie between the East and West.

"That was the best I've ever seen Beban," West Coach Dee Andros of Oregon State said. "And I've seen him on some pretty good days."

Pont was full of praise for both Landry and Beban.

"I don't know much about the pros, but I don't see how they can go wrong on either Beban or Landry," Pont said. "And Csonka is a great runner."

The game produced the most points ever scored in the affair, which was played in Buffalo, N.Y., five years before coming here.

Max Baer's Script: Leave 'Em Laughing

I guess the thing that stands out clearest in my mind about Maximilian Adelbert Baer, who once was heavyweight champion of all the world, was that he could even see the funny side to dying.

He must have known the count had reached 9 when he got his massive heart attack in his room at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel on Nov. 21, 1959, but he couldn't resist a final quip when he called downstairs and said "I think I'm having a heart attack, could you call me a doctor." "Would you like a house doctor?" the voice asked. "No," cracked Maxie Baer, "you better get me a people doctor."

An old joke, but an exit line for Max Baer. He left stage as he had entered — laughing.

HE WAS 50 years old. He had treated the heavyweight championship as if it were the Colgate Comedy Hour.

You see, he had killed one man in the ring (perhaps, two — because the medical evidence in the death of Ernie Schaaf at the hands of Primo Carnera is that it was really retroactive to a prior knockout by Baer.)

AND THERE are those who swear Max never unloaded a real right hand again in his career except to pick up a check. The proof, they say, is that the last 40 guys he fought, lived. Max's right had been described by one reporter as "cobblestone." Of course, it moved about as fast, too. It was as easy to see coming as a glacier. It landed, though, like a falling safe. Some guys went down just from the suction.

JOE LOUIS said he never hit anybody harder, oftener than Max Baer without noticeably mussing his haircut. The chin was cobblestone, too.

Max was a bright-lights guy. He once sold 140% of himself, but no one could ever figure out whether this was indicative he was very bad at arithmetic—or very good at it. His manager, Ancil Hoffman, finally put his money so deep in a fund in a bank that the only way Max could have gotten it out was with a mask and acetylene torch after dark. It was not that Ancil didn't want Max to get his hands on it, he didn't want the Broadway hatcheck girls to. Max was a bigger sucker for a hard-luck story than he was for a left hook. It would probably make him roar with laughter to think he missed getting his hands on that money finally by three months.

I GOT MOST of the stories on the old champ the other day from another ex-fighter with a V-build from the belt buckle up, a shock of black hair, wrists like wagon tongues and a right like — well, a cobblestone. If they ever make a movie of Max Baer's life this guy would be a natural.

It had to be either L'il Abner or Max Baer Jr., and it was indeed the champ's oldest boy. You will know him as the shambling "Jethro" of "Beverly Hillbillies."

MAX JR. DIDN'T inherit his dad's cobblestone chin. In his only fight, he ended up unconscious, his nose was broken — and it hurt to brush his teeth for a week.

But he did get a legacy from Pop: he liked to be out where he could hear the horns honking and the bands playing. No one ever caught Max Jr. sitting in front of a fire with his slippers on and pipe out, either. In college, he sold educational aids — such as purloined copies of final exams and cribs (not the kind you put babies in, the kind you put under your cuffs). The only book he opened had phone numbers in it.

HE DIDN'T come to Hollywood to play Shakespeare, he came to play the races. He didn't make bets, he took them. He never bet into a wheel, a totalisator or bucked the house odds. He took them.

He became a scratch golfer who used to win $25 bets on the first tee betting he could knock a ball into a barranca 330 yards away. Sometimes his putts almost made the barranca, too, but he is still good enough to have won the pro-am at the Andy Williams tournament this year with Charlie Sifford.

HE TAKES acting the way his father took fighting — half-lark, half-living.

You have a feeling the old man, who didn't know Stanislavsky from King Levinsky, either, would approve of No. 1 son.

No. 1 son definitely approves of father. You see, he has found out that Max Baer Sr. found out a year before he died that his fight wasn't going the distance. Everyone knew Max Baer had an enlarged heart. All you had to do was add up the tips to know that. Only he and the sawbones knew he was running out of rounds.

"HE SAID he could never stand to make anyone cry ever again," explained his son the other day. Which may be why he could take the count on one knee in a Hollywood hotel room, give the girl on the switchboard — and the world — one last laugh on him.

Soviet Cage Coach Harbors No Pipe Dreams

MOSCOW (AP) — The coach of the Soviet basketball team that defeated a U.S. team two out of three games in pre-Olympic matches warned today against any Soviet illusions.

"Of course," Coach Alexander Y. Gomelsky wrote in the government newspaper Izvestia, "the victory is a big and honorable one.

"But we should not cherish any illusions, especially if we recall our recent defeat in Minsk." The U.S. team won there 84-78 and then lost two games in Moscow, 91-83 Wednesday and 99-80 Friday night.

"The Americans, after checking their qualities in action, and we, as well, will draw conclusions. Although their Olympic lineup has already been officially announced, they probably will replace three or four players and reinforce their team," Gomelsky wrote.

The three games "exposed tactical shortcomings, especially in defense," by the Soviet team, its coach added. He said the team also must improve its reserves.

Archer Putting Goal Looks Good After 65 In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — George Archer, in his fifth year on the professional golf circuit, has his sights set on a pretty lofty goal. "I'd like to be the best putter on the tour," Archer says. "A fellow like that can make the most money."

The fast-talking Californian already is rated one of the best putters around and showed some of his magic yesterday by shooting a sizzling six-under par 65.

That gave Archer, at 6-foot-6 the tallest touring pro, a 36-hole total of 135 and a one-stroke lead over Tommy Aaron in the $110,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament.

"I think Bob Charles is the best putter around, but some people think I'm better. I don't agree but this was the best I putted in quite a while.

SIX BIRDIES

"In last week's Canadian Open, I was pulling all my putts and I decided my elbows were too far away from my body. So I made an adjustment."

A barrage of six birdies with the help of his accurate putter had Archer in good position for a run at the $22,000 first prize.

He already owns two tournament victories—at Pensacola and New Orleans—and is the third ranking money-winner with $86,638.

The chilly weather has not affected Archer's play. He's needed only 53 putts in two rounds on the 6,742-yard Lakewood Country Club layout.

Winning won't be easy. Aaron came in with a hot 66 yesterday and South American Roberto Devicenzo and Californian Dave Stockton were only two strokes back.

Both Devicenzo and Stockton carded identical 69-68-137s.

Still in contention only three behind the leader were defending champion Gardner Dickinson; rookie Bob Dickson, Wayne Yats, Don January and Rives McBee.

At 139 were Fred Marti, Dave Marr and South African Bobby Cole while Roy Pace, Dale Douglass, Frank Beard and Dan Sikes stood at 140.

GLAMOUR BOYS BACK

Glamour boys Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino were back in the pack. Trevino, brash U.S. Open king, posted a 71 yesterday for a 143 while Palmer also shot even par 71 following a disastrous 75 Thursday. He was at 146 and barely survived the cut.

Among the casualties was Doug Sanders who finished with 149. Exactly half the original field of 144 were set for today's third round action.

Britain's Tony Jacklin, first round leader after a torrid 66, ran into bogey trouble and skied to a 75. He was in a nine-way tie at 141.

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael failed to qualify for the final 36 holes after he shot 75-74—149 in the early rounds. A score of 146 was needed to qualify.

HAWKEN IS IN, LEACH IS OUT IN JUNIOR GOLF

Don Hawken's "in" and Ray Leach is "out."

That was the good and bad news for Marin County golf fans today as they followed the "local boys" in the 51st Western Junior Gold Championship at Stanford.

Hawken, the San Rafael High School alumnus now a sophomore at Brigham Young University, was meeting Andy North of Madison, Wis., in the championship match today while Leach, one of the early favorites from Novato, was watching from the sidelines.

In yesterday's morning quarterfinal matches, North eliminated Leach, 3 and 2, and Hawken downed Bruce Titus of Hawthorne, Calif., 2 up. The qualifying medalist, Bruce Ashworth of Las Vegas, lost to Tony Ferrara of Montebello, Calif., 2 and 1, after being ahead by three strokes after four holes.

North, who barely made the qualifying cut, gained today's final by defeating Donny Powers of Litchfield Park, Ariz., on the 22nd hole.

Hawken, who now hails from Tahoe City, eliminated Ferrara from semifinal competition, 2 and 1.

A's Are In Third!

NEW YORK (AP) — If the Oakland A's sometimes feel like chessmen, who can blame them?

A's Manager Bob Kennedy manipulated the A's like chessmen and checkmated the New York Yankees 3-2 last night, pulling the A's into a third-place tie in the American League race, nine games behind Detroit.

The A's snapped a scoreless game with a pair of runs in the sixth on singles by John Donaldson, Rick Monday, Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson.

In the seventh Kennedy put Jim Gosger in left field for defensive purposes and it was Gosger who caught up with and snared Mickey Mantle's long drive with the bases loaded. It went for a sacrifice fly, scoring a run.

REPLACEMENT

Before that Kennedy had replaced A's starter Lew Krausse with Paul Lindblad. After an error helped the Yankees load the bases he brought in Ed Sprague, who gave way to Jack Aker after Mantle flied out.

"I brought in Aker because I knew he could get the ball over and I wasn't sure about Sprague," said Kennedy.

Aker, who later said he had been told to "pitch around Mantle," walked Mickey on four straight pitches in the ninth.

A passed ball then gave the Yanks the tying runs on second and third. Roy White scored from third on Bill Robinson's infield out. Aker then fanned Andy Kosco to end the game.

LOLLAR IN COMMAND

Kennedy left for Chicago, where his 78-year-old father, Edmund, died Friday, and would rejoin the A's in Boston.

Coach Sherm Lollar handled the A's today as they faced the Yanks in a twi-night doubleheader, John Odom, 7-4, and Tony Pierce, 1-2, of the A's going against Mel Stottlemyre, 9-4, and Fritz Peterson, 4-3.

AT WIMBLEDON

Nancy Richey Moves Into Third Net Round

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., one of the favorites for the women's singles title, gained the third round of the Wimbledon open tennis tournament today with a 6-1, 6-3 conquest of Helen Amos of Australia.

It was the first match of the day on the famed center court and the stands were packed. Some of the spectators had stood in line for tickets since late Friday.

It also was the first time the sun bore down on the players and crowd since the tourney began on Monday. With 181 matches postponed during the week because of the heavy rains, play began in mid-morning, the first time in 82 years that competition began before lunch.

Russian tennis was on the march yesterday—and old Pancho Gonzales, one of the world's highest paid professional stars, is out of Wimbledon.

Alexander Metreveli, 23-year-old No. 1 of the Soviet Union, upset the veteran from Los Angeles, yesterday 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 in the third round.

Metreveli shattered Gonzales' dream of winning Wimbledon at age 40. The American competed here only once before—in 1949—just before turning pro.

Because of a backlog caused by rain, Gonzales had to play his second singles match in two days. Normally he would have been given a day's rest between.

Hush-Hush Over NFL Meeting

DETROIT (AP) — Representatives of players and owners of National Football League teams have refused to comment on their secret meeting yesterday to discuss complaints and a possible strike by the some 640 league players.

An Associated Press newsman and an area newspaper photographer both were asked to leave the Pine Lake Country Club just outside Keego Harbor, Mich., where the meeting was held.

Vince Lombardi, general manager of the Green Bay Packers, and Detroit Lions guard John Gordy, president of the NFL Players Association, refused to comment on the talks.

Gordy said he might make a statement after meeting owners representatives early today.

"I thought this was supposed to be a well-kept secret," Lombardi said when a newsman arrived at the club.

PLANS KEPT SECRET

Plans and location of the meeting reportedly had been kept secret in the belief that negotiations would be smoother without publicity.

The NFL Players seeks a minimum salary similar to that of the major baseball leagues. NFL players now get an allowance of $10 a day when in training or playing an exhibition game. They seek $500 each for all exhibition games.

In addition, the Association asks that each club contribute $100,000 to the pension plan and pay a $15,000 minimum salary.

Managements of the 16 clubs have contended the demands are excessive, not commensurate with what the clubs now take in. The Players Association has asked to be shown which team profit margins cannot support payment of the proposed contributions.

MOST WOULD STRIKE

The Associated Press learned Thursday that all NFL players had been polled by telephone and that most were going to strike if their demands were not met.

Contacted in Denver, Pete Rozelle, football commissioner, expressed skepticism about the strike threat, calling owners and players alike "responsible people who will get together."

Rozelle said he had known of the player canvassing, but said he had not been contacted on the matter.

William Clay Ford, owner of the Lions, had called the meeting only regular and the strike reports "strictly a rumor."

Exact make-up of the secret meeting could not be determined. The committee appointed by the NFL owners to negotiate with the players consists of Lombardi, Wellington Mara Jr., president of the New York Giants; Rankin Smith, president of the Atlanta Falcons; Jim Finks, Minnesota Vikings general manager, and George Hallas Jr., president and general manager of the Chicago Bears.

Philadelphia Eagles quarterback King Hill is vice president of the Players Association.

Mill Valley Merchants To Battle Spiders

Mill Valley Merchants semi-professional baseball team will play the San Francisco Spiders tomorrow, 1:30 p.m., at Mill Valley's Project 17 park.

The Mill Valley squad is composed of the following players:

Stoic Frank Is Bubbling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It was evident there was something unique about the San Francisco Giants' game last night—usually taciturn Manager Herman Franks was very talkative.

The Giant skipper bubbled with enthusiasm after right-hander Gaylord Perry overcame six errors and three unearned runs for a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Perry, now 7-4, scattered six hits as Jim Hart's two-run homer with two out in the seventh erased the Reds' 3-2 lead.

"That was some game," said Franks. "Perry had to pitch his heart out to win. And he did. And Hart really had to rack that pitch to get it out of the park in that wind."

A jubilant Perry concurred. "Hart had to hit it a ton to get it out," he said. "A win like this can give you a big lift. I just tried to keep control of myself and not get upset by the errors.

"But I have no apologies coming from the guys," Perry added. "I had a part in it too." He was referring to a bizarre third-inning play which led to a pair of unearned runs and a 2-0 Reds' lead.

With one out, Woody Woodward singled and was forced at second by pitcher Tony Cloninger. After Pete Rose walked, Alex Johnson hit a grounder to the right side.

Second baseman Ron Hunt fielded it and fired a strike to first base. Perry and first baseman Willie McCovey were at the bag, but neither made an effort to catch the ball and it sailed past the base.

Johnson was awarded a single on the play and Hunt was charged for an error as Cloninger scored. Catcher Jack Hiatt picked up the ball and made a throwing error as Rose came around to score.

Hunt was upset about the call after the game and Perry came to his defense. "I should have had the throw—it was perfect," said the pitcher. "I have myself to blame for those two runs."

The Giants tied it in the fourth on Hiatt's single, rookie Bobby Bonds' triple and Frank Johnson's single. Johnny Bench's single, errors by Hart and shortstop Hal Lanier and Cloninger's run-scoring single placed Cincinnati ahead in the sixth before Hart took command in the seventh.

The Giants played without Willie Mays, who remained at home with the flu. He was expected to play Saturday, however.

Newell Offspring Enrolls At Cal

BERKELEY (AP) — Roger Newell, 17-year-old son of San Diego Rockets' general manager Pete Newell, said today he will enroll at the University of California on a baseball and basketball scholarship.

A star athlete at Berkeley's St. Mary's High, the six-foot, 160-pound Newell will enter Cal at a time when his father steps down as athletic director to join a National Basketball Association club.

A guard, Newell averaged 12.3 points per game for three years and was an 80 per cent free throw shooter for 81 high school games. He posted a 9-3 record as a right-handed pitching star during his senior season and hurled a no-hitter as a junior.

"The decision was entirely my own," said the Newells' third of four sons. "Dad was surprised I picked Cal. Everyone thought it was USC all the way."

Bunning Pays Off

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh pennant coup that became a Philadelphia bargain finally swung a little in the Pirates' direction . . . when Jim Bunning got in the swing against his old pals.

Bunning and Woody Fryman, the principals in a multi-player winter trade between the Pirates and Phillies, pitched against each other for the first time this season last night at Philadelphia.

But the anticipated duel deteriorated into a 10-1 romp for the Pirates and Bunning, who scattered eight hits and knocked in three runs with a double and single on the way to his first victory since May 6.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston thwarted New York's latest bid to reach the .500 mark by trimming the Mets 7-2, Atlanta blanked Los Angeles 3-0, San Francisco downed Cincinnati 4-3 and St. Louis slugged the Chicago Cubs 9-5.

Bunning, whose arrival in Pittsburgh was looked upon as the salvation of the Pirates' troubled pitching staff, took a 3-9 record and a 3.69 earned run average into his first appearance against his former teammates. Plagued by groin and ankle injuries, the 36-year-old right-hander had lost seven in a row.

Fryman, the 28-year-old southpaw who went to the Phillies with three others in exchange for Bunning, had rebounded from a 3-8 season at Pittsburgh by winning 10 of 16 decisions this year. He was 7-0 in Connie Mack Stadium and had a brilliant ERA of 1.81.

The Pirates turned the Bunning-Fryman collision into a mismatch, pounding out 15 hits including three each by Manny Mota and Fred Patek. They tagged Fryman for six runs—three of them unearned—and chased him in the sixth.

Bunning helped his own cause with a run-scoring double in the third and a two-run single in the Pirates' four-run sixth.

Right-hander Larry Dierker stymied the Mets, giving up three singles and a run in the first inning and then scattering six more hits the rest of the way.

Rusty Staub's two-run double and a sacrifice fly by Doug Rader sent the Astros in front 3-1 in the bottom of the first and then clipped rookie Nolan Ryan for two more runs in the fifth before pulling away on Dierker's run-scoring double in the sixth and Jim Wynn's seventh inning homer.

It was the fifth time this season the Mets have been one victory away from the .500 mark and have failed to reach it. They have never been at .500 at this stage of the season in their seven-year history.

Milt Pappas stopped the Dodgers on four hits, disappointing a Bat Night crowd of 51,747 at Los Angeles. Run-scoring singles by Sonny Jackson and Felipe Alou and Hank Aaron's 15th homer tagged southpaw Mike Kekich with the loss.

Two-run homers by Orlando Cepeda and Mike Shannon in the fifth inning powered the league-leading Cardinals past the hapless Cubs, who have lost seven in a row and 12 of their last 13 starts.

The Best Aims For Olympics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Nation's finest track and field athletes, excluding a few hardship case absentees, take another long stride this weekend toward the Olympic Games in Mexico City in October.

The two-day U.S. Olympic Trials for men got underway late this afternoon and wind up tomorrow in Los Angeles' immense Memorial Coliseum. Competition in the track events begins at 7 p.m., EDT, each day.

The trials are vital but not the final word in the makeup of the team which will go to Mexico City Oct. 12-27.

The first three finishers here automatically will be invited to participate in the final high altitude drills in September at South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Head U.S. Coach Payton Jordan, from Stanford, said from six to 10 athletes in the various events will be invited to Lake Tahoe. Included will be a number who are unable because of illness or injuries to compete this weekend.

The hardship cases included such brilliant performers as Jim Ryun, Richmond Flowers and Willie Davenport, who are nursing ailments of one sort or another.

Charlie Greene, Jim Hines and Ronnie Ray Smith, who bettered the world record in the 100-meters with 9.9 bursts in the national AAU last week, plus Mel Pender, Kurt Clayton and Oliver Ford, each clocked at record equalling time of 10.0, are on hand.

San Rafael Braves Take On Eureka

The Litchfield Braves of San Rafael, leading the Western Baseball Association with a 13-2 record, leave the warmth of their home wigwam and go on a treacherous, extended road trip beginning this weekend with a visit to Eureka for a three-game series with the Eureka Crabs.

The Braves take on the second-place Crabs (6-3), beginning with a night game today and a doubleheader tomorrow beginning at noon.

Manager Joe Anselmo of San Rafael will start with right-hander Bill Clark tonight and follow with another pair of right-handers, Ron Cole and Gregg Tellis, tomorrow.

It is expected to be a heated series. The Crabs are tough to beat at home, one way or another and could take a hunk out of the Braves' fat four-game lead.

Also in question were injunctions blocking action by the Racing Commission on citations it had issued against Edward S. Bonnie and Arthur W. Grafton, two of Fuller's attorneys.

All of the injunctions were granted June 8 by Circuit Court Jiudge Henry Meigs.

ABA Champions Take Ball To Minnesota Franchise

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Lured by the success of pro teams in three other sports and previous professional basketball teams, the American Basketball Association is moving its championship team to Minnesota.

Gabe Rubin, owner of the Pittsburgh Pipers, told a news conference yesterday that the Piper franchise would move to Minneapolis-St. Paul this fall. The shift had been rumored for several days.

Rubin disclosed that he had sold 50 per cent interest in the Pipers to William J. Erickson, a Minneapolis businessman and attorney.

Erickson, 37, had served as counsel for the ABA since its formation one year ago. He has submitted his resignation to take over active management of the Pipers.

"Given sound management, aggressive promotion and winning performance, I know professional basketball will be just as successful here as baseball, football and hockey," Erickson said.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

26 EDITORIAL PAGE San Rafael, Calif. Saturday, June 29, 1968

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Bay Supergovernment Turned Down In 1912

Super-government is all the talk these days. Various politicians and others suggest a city and county of Marin. And many of the same persons suggest a Bay Area-wide government, noting that such problems as transportation, air and water pollution, etc., know boundaries of neither city nor county.

A leader in such proposals is San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who turns his head one way to call for regional cooperation and then turns it the other way to advocate a city tax on incomes of those who work in San Francisco and live elsewhere.

TODAY'S ADVOCATES of big government for the Bay Area are probably unaware that a more far-reaching proposal along this line was turned down by California voters 56 years ago. But its advocates in Marin might take heart from the fact that it was favored by Marin voters by two-to-one.

The proposal was for a Greater San Francisco, a single city to embrace San Francisco, San Mateo, Marin and Alameda counties. It might have come to pass had it not been for the fight put up by Alameda County. Then we would all have been San Franciscans — and it would have been a long trip to City Hall.

AGITATION FOR "Greater San Francisco" was started shortly after the earthquake and fire of 1906. It was initiated by something called the California Promotion Committee (a San Francisco organization, of course) and taken over in 1907 by the Greater San Francisco Association, a creature of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

By 1910, a San Francisco legislator had a bill before the lawmakers in Sacramento calling for a constitutional amendment creating the new city to be placed before the voters.

Alameda County interests led by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and with assists from various other parts of the state, killed that one. But then as now, it was not too difficult, if one had the money to finance a campaign, to get a constitutional amendment on the ballot by the initiative route.

That happened, and in the 1912 general election, Californians were presented with a constitutional amendment creating Greater San Francisco.

IT WAS SOUNDLY defeated, losing by about 60,000 votes out of 383,000 cast. But it won in three counties: San Francisco, by a 47,000 majority; San Mateo County, by about two and one-half to one — and Marin, by two-to-one.

Mel Scott of University of California recalled the effort in his 1958 volume on Bay Area planning history, "The San Francisco Bay Area."

GIVING UP hard after the turndown at the polls, the San Francisco Chronicle editorialized:

"The greater city is here and it makes not the slightest difference except for advertising and sentimental purposes whether it be called San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Richmond, or San Mateo. It is one city and it has common purposes which cannot be properly dealt with except by a single political organization for these purposes."

Sound familiar?

"There is no new thing under the sun." (Ecclesiastes.)

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to those who "hog" angle parking spaces at the Civic Center parking area. One or two cars that park on or close to the white line force all other cars down the line to do likewise.

BOUQUETS to the Do Something group of Redwood High School students and recent graduates, who offer talent and brawn to serve the less fortunate. BOUQUETS also to other youth groups who give of their time and effort at hospitals, schools and other institutions.

BOUQUETS to Marin high school students who have enough interest in county government to seek positions on county advisory commissions.

A BOUQUET to Adolph T. Henrich, the amiable fire chief of Ross, for his 24 years of service as chief. He will retire at the end of next month.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Dissolving Span Board Is Still A Possibility

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Abolition of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District was kissed off earlier this year by Sacramento watchers as a political impossibility.

But the mood has changed.

The first sign was Assembly passage last week, in a 69-0 vote, of a bill (AB 855) by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, to force the bridge board to seek competitive bidding on all work over $5,000.

This week, the bill was assigned by the Senate rules committee to the Senate local government committee — a significant assignment. Such a bill normally would have gone to the Senate transportation committee, chaired by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, a close friend of the bridge board.

Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, long an advocate of dissolution of the bridge district and its replacement with a Bay Area regional agency, is a member of the rules committee.

COLLIER MAY have traded his friendship with the northern county bridge directors this time for some support for something more dear to him. Perhaps he, too, sees the handwriting on the wall for the bridge district.

Bagley's bill, thus, is before a committee that is at least neutral on the question of the bridge district's future.

This very well may provide an opening for important amendments to Bagley's bill — even the dissolution he has proposed in another bill.

An alternative amendment reportedly being considered would add four directors to the 14-member board, two from Marin and two from San Francisco.

The Assembly vote against the district last week was evidence that a dissolution bill probably would pass the lower house.

It may be too late in the legislative session, however, to do the kind of horse trading that would be necessary to get the bill past the Senate, but a real try may still be made this session.

IT WAS THE bridge board's approval of a $320,000 subcontract without competitive bidding that got AB 855 rolling.

The subcontract may cause another problem for the district.

At least one Marin citizen has consulted his attorney about the possibility either of getting an injunction against the district to stop the subcontract work, or a suit to recover whatever bridge funds — public funds — are spent on the subcontract.

Legal action would cost at least $2,000, the attorney estimated. The attorney offered to donate some of his time, and the client is talking with other taxpayers about sharing the cost of the action.

THIS REPORTER recently speculated in this space about possible successors to bridge director Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato. The names of Jack Adams of Novato and Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen were mentioned.

One name overlooked was county planning commissioner Margaret Azevedo. A former member of the Bay Area Transportation Study Commission until dropped by Gov. Ronald Reagan in a political reshuffle of the commission, she is reported to be interested in the directorship.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

June 29, 1958

A narcotics-hungry burglar made his third strike of the month at Marin drugstores. Each time, the burglar (or burglars) made off with quantities of narcotics and some money.

The National Park Service urged a huge recreation area for West Marin, to encompass 28,000 acres on the coast.

20 YEARS AGO

June 29, 1948

Obstacles in the way of acquisition of the top of Mount Tamalpais as a state park were cleared and legislators expected final approval soon.

A group of Sausalito residents urged dissolution of the Southern Marin Sanitary District because Mill Valley was planning an independent sanitation project that Sausalito said it couldn't afford.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

IN QUEBEC, a determined tourist from Reading, Pa., struggled to recall a smidgin of his high school French in a restaurant. "Nous voulons," he stammered, "deux consomme avec bread and butter — that is beurre and something or other. Comprenez?" "Sorry," shrugged the waiter, "but I hail from Boston, mister. I don't understand a word of French." "Well, then," exploded the tourist, "get me somebody who can."

THE MAILS were too slow for Charles Miehle: he had to WIRE me, "U Thant get away from the fact that LBJ seems increasingly Hanoied by what's going on in Vietnam!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Parents Welcome Family Life Study

I feel compelled to respond to Mr. Bryce Anderson's People's Schools article of June 13, "Family Life Education Sparking Wide Protest." Specifically, I object to his use of the words "wide protest" in the headline, since he then cites only the cities of Burlingame and San Luis Obispo as areas where people do not approve of certain instructional materials used in their local programs.

We see and hear no wide protest in the schools of Marin County. Quite the contrary. Questionnaires sent home for evaluation of the television series "Time of Your Life," for instance, reveal that parents welcome, or assume, that information regarding human growth and development is studied and discussed in the classroom during science time.

Responsible people across our country — parents, in churches, P-TA, YMCA, educators, social scientists, physicians, (the list is long) for years have seen the need to include family-life information in the school curriculum.

None of us lives in a vacuum. Children at home and in the community receive sex education from the day they are born. What is being said is "Let's all do a better job in this area of learning."

Arrigoni Supports Long Range Planning

I read with alarm in Saturday's Independent-Journal that Supervisor Kettenhofen felt my election to the Board of Supervisors will necessitate a one-third cut in the planning department budget. I could not disagree with him more.

He stated that my campaign positions on various issues (the West Marin Master Plan, Wolfe Grade Extension, Ross Valley Flood Control Project, Removal of Highway 17 and 1 from the State Freeway and Expressway System, and my support for the dissolution of the Bolinas Harbor District) will mean that "all long-range planning will be thwarted" and that, therefore, the planning department budget should be drastically trimmed. I do not agree. My positions on these issues do not require any cut back in long range planning.

At a time when so much of the rest of California is increasingly suffering the dreary fate of "Urban Sprawl" I do not see how we can wisely afford to drastically cut back on long-range planning efforts. I am sure we agree that the reasonable and wise development of Marin County dictates high priority for long-range planning if many of our problems are not to continue to worsen.

I realize that, in view of the onerously high property taxes which Marin home owners must pay, it is incumbent upon members of the board to find ways to economize and to reduce the cost of county government. But I believe that it would be "penny wise and pound foolish" and, in fact, a disservice to Marin to reduce long-range planning efforts too drastically as you have suggested.

Right To Bear Arms Relates To Militia

In response to the letter of Mr. M. G. Ray in the I-J on June 24, it should be noted that the constitution does not give the people "the right to own and bear arms," in those terms.

The second amendment to the constitution reads as follows: "A well regulated Militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

Plainly, this provision deals with the maintenance of a militia. The privilege of bearing arms was secured for that purpose.

Those interested in bearing arms for personal reasons quote only the latter half of the amendment as though it were the whole amendment.

We Should Rely On Courts, Law Agencies

No doubt the efforts by many of our public officials and individual citizens to enact some sort of gun legislation is well meant. However, is it really new laws that are needed or the enforcing of all of our present laws?

Perhaps before the wave of emotion subsides these same people can expend an equal amount of energy to see to it that law enforcement is returned to those agencies trained to do just that.

The large number of guns purchased in the last few years were not purchased by would be assassins, but by people feeling a need for self-protection — a feeling brought about by the fact that our police departments are being hindered more and more in performing their duties.

You can be sure that all guns being turned in are by people whom we need not fear. On the other hand, the militant groups who could turn this nation into an inferno will not turn in their guns, let alone register them. If enough of the well meaning populace turn in their weapons would not this tend to encourage these same militant groups into more activity since there would be less of a chance of innocent people to defend themselves?

Maybe some good can come of this period of turmoil — by demanding our law enforcement agencies and our courts to protect us, the main purpose for which they exist.

Avoid Stampede On Gun Control Laws

. . . I do not belong to the NRA, John Birch Society, Minutemen or any other political organization either left or right. . . .

While I do not question the motives of the majority of gun law proponents, a simple look at the history of dictatorships should make apparent the parallelism of the trend. First the speciousness of gun registration; and after the law abiding citizens have done so, their confiscation. Surely no one is naive enough to believe that the criminal is going to register his?

There are many other paralleling trends to consider, such as; personal income tax, establishment of national personal data files, extremely personal census questionnaires, the inability of communities to establish rules of conduct and morality and many others too numerous to mention. I can visualize my grandfather's reaction to a perfect stranger asking him some of the questions contained in census questionnaires. While we are assured that all these things are for our own good or protection, what happens if the wrong person has access to these files?

I therefore strongly feel that it is incumbent upon every freedom-loving person, and aren't we all, to resist any and all covert acts that would undermine the heritage given us by our founding fathers, regardless of its apparent insignificance.

For these and other reasons I urge our political leaders not to be stampeded into rash actions, and to be sure that they really know the will of the people. Is our democracy still conducted by majority rule?

Humphrey Confident He's Got It In Bag

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's campaign crew is groping for an issue of convention procedure to unite a majority of the Democratic delegates against backers of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Humphrey's own campaign team is expecting a move of this type, but it is so confident of victory that it is willing to go more than half way to meet the demands of McCarthy spokesmen. But it doubts that the McCarthy supporters will settle for anything short of unconditional surrender.

SINCE THE death of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Humphrey and McCarthy are the only major national contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination. The Vice President appears headed toward a first ballot victory if anything is predictable in this year of unforeseen political events.

Inasmuch as he did not compete in presidential primaries, the Humphrey campaigners are concerned about shouts of "steamroller" and "boss domination" of the convention already coming from the McCarthy side.

The McCarthy camp would like to dramatize that issue at the convention. They are not likely to try a contest over a "peace plank" repudiating the Johnson Administration on Vietnam. Anti-Goldwater Republicans tried and failed to win fights over platform planks at the 1964 GOP convention.

McCarthy supporters also are not expected to try to resist the election of pro-Humphrey or pro-Administration officers already tapped by the party leadership for key roles at the convention.

But they are talking about fights over seating delegations with arguments that they were denied their legitimate share of delegates from various states. This route was successfully followed by backers of Dwight D. Eisenhower in winning him the 1952 Republican nomination from Robert A. Taft.

That Eisenhower gamble was led by men like Thomas E. Dewey, Herbert Brownell and Henry Cabot Lodge, shrewd political pros of a type not conspicuous in the McCarthy organization.

THERE ALSO has been talk about demanding repeal of the unit rule, a procedural practice recognized by the Democrats but not by the GOP at national conventions.

Under a unit rule, a state delegation can bind all of its members to vote as a solid bloc on the nomination of a candidate or other questions. Some of the states which have historically followed this practice might resist a change, but the Humphrey leaders might not.

Although some states have not yet chosen delegates, the Humphrey organization believes it already can look ahead to 1,600 first ballot votes or more. The winner needs 1,312.

The McCarthy organization thinks it has 700 in sight. It hopes that improved McCarthy showings in public opinion polls and other tactics will shake 600 more into the McCarthy hamper.

Will Lights Of Peace Go On Again In Paris?

By EVERETT McKINLEY DIRKSEN

It was 23 years ago this summer that the guns in Europe stood still. The Allied Powers were victorious in the West. It was the end of Hitler's evil dream. VE Day had come and there was peace.

I was in Paris when the lights went on. The pandemonium was deafening as the pent-up spirit for years back was given expression by every man, woman and child. For the first time in years, the lights came on at night. On the Champs Elysees there was mass madness. There was absolute ecstasy as the soft lights of the Academy of Music added their glow to the shining night.

I stood against a building in the shadows and watched this human spectacle of joy and thanksgiving unfold. The mind was searching for an adequate thought. It came and it was of a Man hanging on a cross. His last words were, "It is finished." I thought, almost audibly, it is finished. Then there was the disquieting thought — was it only for now? Would mankind succeed in turning his failure of centuries of war into a lasting peace?

THE FOLLOWING morning I went to Versailles to stand in the great hall where the Treaty of Versailles was signed to conclude World War I. The hall was closed. I knocked on many doors. At last, a dozen doors down the echoing corridors, a French policeman appeared. I told him what I wanted to see. He nodded gravely and conducted me to that large, high-ceilinged room with walls adorned with paintings of the more glorious days of France. To my guide I asked, "Where did President Wilson sit?"

He responded quickly, "Here, m'sieu."

"Where did Lloyd George sit?"

"Voila!"

Then there was the picture of that meeting which formally concluded the war to end all wars, as it was then hailed and described.

AND NOW, in 1945, half of the world was going through all that agony all over again. It was but another war to end all wars. The devils who played the leading roles in provoking war were pretty much the same. It was only that they bore different names.

Then came another dream — the United Nations. Its structure and functioning were hailed with glorious language and high hopes. But one could not help but wonder a little at the depth of our faith as regional defense groupings —NATO, SEATO, the Warsaw Pact and others — began to take form.

It was but another six years before the troops of member nations of UN were fighting along Pusan Road and elsewhere in Korea. It was first regarded as a "police action." It turned out to be a major war with heavy casualties. Then, at long last an uneasy truce was achieved. Its continued violation by North Korea in the years that followed underscore the fact that it is indeed a fragile truce.

THEN ANOTHER 10 years and millions of men and boys — ours, Australia's, South Korea's, South Vietnam's, Viets from the North and the Viet Cong — were at it again, seeking by arbitrament of force to settle questions which human understanding, tolerance and unselfishness should be able to settle.

And now the Vietnam negotiators are in Paris —the same Paris where I stood in the shadow 23 years ago to murmur a prayer of thanksgiving and hope that a marching, civilizing force would assuage the jungle instinct and the combative urge in mankind, and that reason, logic and forebearance might prevail.

We may well ask: Will this be another of the incredible failures of man? Will the melodious song of peace— ". . . In the sky, the larks still bravely singing fly" be drowned out by the guns below? Countless millions pray that now man has yet another chance, he be given the power and the grace to succeed.

Every public action which is not customary, either is wrong, or, if it is right, is a dangerous precedent. It follows that nothing should ever be done for the first time. —Francis MacDonald Cornford.

Poverty, Sickness Just Two Of Critical Indian Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Black and red together . . . we shall overcome," they sang as they confronted their government in Washington on May 1.

The Poor People's Campaign had come to the Interior Department, and with it a reminder that among the nation's poorest is the Indian — "the forgotten American," as President Johnson had described him, "an alien in his own land."

In a special message to Congress last March, the President had depicted the "tragic plight" of the Indian:

An unemployment rate of 40 per cent; a school dropout rate of 50 per cent; low literacy; high rates of sickness and poverty; 50,000 families in "unsanitary, dilapidated dwellings"; unpreparedness for migration to the cities, and death at the average age of 44, compared with 65 for all other Americans.

The Census Bureau has estimated that half of all white American families had an annual income above $5,893; for non-white families, that median income was $3,161. For Indians, says the Bureau of Indian Affairs, it is only $1,500 a year — half of what the government considers a poverty income.

When Columbus, looking for the East Indies, stumbled on America instead, an estimated 840,000 "Indians" had the continent to themselves.

The white wave of invaders over the next 300 years swept the Indians westward, overran them and moved on, leaving them stranded on parcels of reserved land — reservations.

By the late 19th Century, as the U.S. population raced past the 50 million mark, only about 243,000 Indians were left.

Since then, they have been making a comeback.

Today there are an estimated 600,000 Indians and their birth rate is double the national average.

They are fragmented into some 263 tribes speaking perhaps 160 languages.

About 200,000 are trying to make their way in the still-simmering "melting pot" of society at large.

The other 400,000 still live on 290 reservatons in 25 states, ranging from California rancherias of a few acres to the giant Navajo reservation sprawling over 14 million acres of Arizona, New Mexico and Utah — one reservation as big as Maryland, Massachusetts and Rhode Island combined.

Ten other reservations include more than a million acres each; the Hopi, the Papage, the San Carlos (Apache) and the Fort Apache, all in Arizona; the Colville and the Yakima Public Domain in Washington state; the Sioux' Cheyenne River and Pine Ridge reservations in South Dakota; the Crow lands in Montana; and the Wind River holdings of the Arapaho and Shoshone tribes in Wyoming.

Reservation land totals some 50 million acres — about 2 per cent of the entire United States — with 90 per cent of it concentrated in Arizona, Oklahoma, New Mexico, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Utah, Wyoming and Nevada.

That works out to about 125 acres for each reservation Indian.

But they are largely unproductive acres, too poor to yield a decent living.

The white man frequently paid for the better land he took from the Indians, but not much. The purchase of Manhattan Island for $24 is an American legend.

Descendants of the Indians who lost the land have filed 587 claims against the government for additional compensation. They are not always specific, but one authority says they amount to claims on "practically all of the country west of the Allegheny Mountains."

In 1946, the Indian Claims Commission was set up to decide each claim. So far it has dismissed 135 and upheld 111 others, awarding a total of more than $262 million.

What the Indians receive is what the commission decides the land was worth when it was taken — that, at 19th Century prices, without any adjustment for the increase in value or the inflation of the dollar since then.

In rare cases involving oil lands, payments run as high as $200 or $300 an acre. The normal range is 20 cents to one dollar an acre.

"Let me be very frank with you," Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall told the Indians of the Poor People's Campaign a month after their first visit.

"There were many treaties that were made in the past. A lot of them were unjust, there is no question about it. We have been trying for the last 20 years at least (a reference to claims payments) to ease some of that injustice. But I have no land to give. . . .

"I see no disposition to go back and take National Forest Lands and create Indian reservations out of them . . . I do not think Congress is going to do it. I do not think you're going to get any administration to do it."

Mrs. Lucille Knight, an Indian woman from the Fort Berthold Reservation, rose and told of seeing America for the first time on her cross-country trip from North Dakota to Washington, for the campaign.

"It was just beautiful," she sighed, "the land we used to own."

Senate Confounds The Pros On Taxes, Gun Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Back in January anybody could see this was the year Congress would not act on civil rights, a tax hike or gun controls. But now, with adjournment still weeks away, it has banned discrimination in housing, raised taxes 10 per cent and outlawed interstate and mail sale of hand guns.

Further confounding the experts, the legislation in all these fields was drafted in the Senate, which traditionally has had a terrible time with civil rights and gun controls and which on tax matters is supposed under the Constitution to defer to the House.

THE HIGHLIGHTS

The actions undoubtedly will highlight the year's work, which also includes a requirement that sellers tell buyers how much they are paying for credit; a reversal of some Supreme Court restrictions on use of confessions in court; an authorization of wiretaps by police under court orders in felony cases, and provisions of secret service protection for major presidential contenders.

Now congressional leaders are trying to wind up the session (and the 90th Congress) by the first week in August, in advance of the national political conventions. There is every reason to think that little more major legislation will beat the final gavel.

But on the basis of the form sheets so far, don't bet on it.

Something may yet be done to feed more hungry school children, to assure clean poultry, to increase compensation of veterans disabled in service, to tighten controls on drugs and to improve housing for the poor. Legislation in all these fields is part way through the legislative mill.

Also, and even more surprising considering its minimal prospects when the session began, members say there could be additional gun control legislation, especially if the capitol continues to be flooded with the pro-control mail that began after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

President Johnson said the curb on hand guns Congress sent him as part of an anti-crime package was only a start. He called for extension of its restrictions to cover rifles and shotguns. He urged a ban on sale of all ammunition to minors.

Sentiment also was mounting among members for registration of guns, possibly to be left to the states except where they fail to act.

FINAL HURDLE

As usual at this time of year, most of the annual crop of appropriations bills (including about $30 billion for the Vietnam War) are still in the works. They were all supposed to be passed by Monday.

Nobody is concerned about this, and the affected agencies won't die on the vine. In the end, however, getting the money bills passed may prove the final big hurdle in the way of a pre-convention adjournment.

Congress may have helped ease the pain of this when it wrote into the tax boost a requirement that President Johnson cut spending plans for the next year by $6 billion in case Congress itself fails to agree on money cuts of that size.

The way things are going, it will have missed the mark by a couple of billion, leaving the hardest part of the job up to Johnson himself.

THIS WEEK In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

President Johnson has signed into law legislation imposing higher taxes on 82 million Americans.

The 10 per cent personal and business tax hike also carries with it a mandatory $6 billion cut in federal spending. The law puts a spending ceiling of $180.1 billion on fiscal 1969. Johnson's budget had called for spending $186.1 billion.

Of the 98 million taxpaying Americans, 16 million lower income ones are exempt from the higher taxes. The surcharge will not apply to single people making less than 1,900 annually, nor married people with two dependent children earning up to $5,000.

For the rest, their normal tax bill on April 15 will be 7.5 per cent more than it would have been without the new law, or an extra $7.50 on top of every $100 owed.

In signing the tax bill yesterday, Johnson said he was accepting its order to cut $6 billion from his spending plans for the fiscal year beginning Monday, because the 10 per cent tax the bill imposed is "so imperative to the economic health of the nation."

Johnson said he believed the $6 billion cut in spending was "most unwise."

Johnson said that in carrying out the Congressional mandate to slash spending "I will do my best to fulfill our most urgent priorities and to continue the central operations of government."

Around The World; Around The Clock:

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan, guarded so carefully he barely could be seen, was granted a three-week continuance yesterday before he pleads to charges he killed Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and wounded five other persons on June 5.

Five burly deputies surrounded the 24-year-old Jordanian native in a makeshift courtroom in the chapel of the new County Jail for a preliminary hearing before Superior Judge Richard Schauer.

The short, chunky defendant was hardly visible to newsmen with the deputies towering over him. He sat and sometimes stood during the nine-minute session and then was taken back to his cell in a wheelchair, presumably because of ankle and hand injuries suffered when he was subdued following the shooting of Kennedy at the Ambassador Hotel June 5.

The judge quickly granted the continuance until 9 a.m., July 19 at the request of Sirhan's new attorney, Russell E. Parsons, who said he needed more time to study the case, including the voluminous testimony taken by the Grand Jury which indicted Sirhan June 7.

Also at the request of Parsons, the judge appointed Dr. George Abe of Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk, Calif., to make a psychiatric examination of Sirhan "as expeditiously as possible."

Results of Abe's tests will be available only to the SAIGON—The U.S. command announced that Marines are pulling out of the once-besieged base of Khe Sanh, where some 100 Americans were killed in enemy shellings. U.S. forces will build up bases several miles away and out of range of North Vietnamese artillery.

LONDON—James Earl Ray, the man accused of assassinating Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., replied, "No, sir," when asked by his attorney in a British court if he killed the civil rights leader. Ray's statement came during proceedings instigated by the U.S. government to have Ray extradited to stand trial in Memphis for the slaying.

PARIS—North Vietnamese negotiators at the Paris talks on the Vietnam War rejected Vice Prsident Humphrey's suggestion of an immediate cease-fire and the meetings aimed at scaling down the war remained deadlocked after the 10th session.

WASHINGTON—Resurrection City, U.S.A., the 16-acre campsite of the Poor People's Campaign, was shut down by police with a minimum of difficulty. The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, campaign leader, and some 300 of his followers were arrested in a demonstration climaxing the shutdown and Abernathy was sentenced to 20 days in jail.

IGNITE PARTISAN FEUD

Johnson's Court Selections Face Rough Time In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson has dumped Abe Fortas and Homer Thornberry into the maelstrom of Senate politics. The betting is they will get Senate confirmation, but not without a major fight.

Johnson's nomination of Fortas to succeed retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren and Thornberry to fill the vacancy on the bench has ignited a partisan political battle which could interfere with efforts by Democrats and Republicans to adjourn Congress before the GOP convention in early August.

So far at least 18 Senate Republicans — half the GOP strength in the Senate —have signed a position paper objecting to the nomination of Fortas and Thornberry by a "lame duck" President. Several other Republicans are considering joining the movement.

As often happens, southern Democrats may hold the key, and so far they are noncommital. They have hedged on their declarations behind terse comments that they want to study high court decisions by Fortas and the rulings handed down by Thornberry on the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

TROUBLE AHEAD?

If the southerners break party lines and go to bat with the Republicans —as they often have —then the nominations are in serious trouble.

The Republican opponents threaten a filibuster. If the southerners —or at least a sizable segment—join them, the potential for a talkathon is there. More important, the chances of breaking a filibuster are dimmed by the fact Congress wants to adjourns by Aug. 1 or 2.

Although no southern senator has mentioned it, there is little to choose between Warren and Fortas so far as they are concerned. Both justices have sided with the majority on questions of civil rights and the rights of the accused in criminal cases.

ABE FORTAS
Faces rough . . .

HOMER THORNBERRY

Nor has the nomination of Thornberry mollified the opposition of southern senators to the makeup of the court. They feel that the former congressman speaks with a southern accent but renders decisions with a northern twang.

MAY HOLD KEY

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, an old ally of Johnson, may have the key which could lead to confirmation of both justices without a major party-splitting debacle.

Dirksen told reporters that there was "no chance" he would join the Republican move to filibuster against the Fortas and Thornberry nominations.

"There are some things that have not been disclosed which will be discussed at a policy meeting," Dirksen said. "Some of them are on the delicate side."

Dirksen declined to elaborate. But his comments stirred immediate consideration that Johnson may have informally extended some "plum" which would undercut Republican opposition to the nominations.

There was some speculation that part of the arrangement might include a federal judgeship for assistant Republican leader Thomas Kuchel, defeated in the California primary, or possibly some assurance that another imminent vacancy on the high court would go to a Republican.

A VACANCY?

Some members of the Judiciary Committee, including Dirksen, raised the question whether a vacancy exists in view of the fact Warren will not leave the court until a successor has been named.

The committee has called Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark to discuss this issue July 11 — leaving relatively little time for the Senate to act before adjournment.

SOME MOVEMENT

Population, Affluence Adding To Growing Problem Of Waste

BOSTON (UPI)—Americans are the greatest wasters in the world—but not all the waste is wasted.

Some is used to make parks, golf courses or ski slopes. Some, unfortunately, finds its way into the air and water as pollutants.

YEARLY COSTS

Americans spend billions of dollars yearly to dispose of the billions of pounds of garbage and rubbish they produce. It's becoming increasingly harder to find places to get rid of it.

An authority on the problem, Dr. Melvin W. First of the Harvard School of Public Health, said there are three basic reasons why the country today is faced with such a large refuse problem: Population increase, urbanization and affluence.

"Because of American affluence, people throw away more and more than they ever did. When an American housewife goes shopping, almost everything she buys is packaged. These packages are thrown away. This is sheer affluence."

MORE RUBBISH

Communities with a higher economic level tend to produce more rubbish per household. An average family accumulates about 1.5 tons of garbage and rubbish per year.

Prosperity has increased per capita waste production enormously. Modern packaging practices, countless magazines and newspapers, almost instant obsolescence of an endless variety of material acquisitions and the enormous growth of industry have combined to increase the daily per capita production of solid wastes in this country from 2.7 pounds in 1920 to more than 4.5 pounds now.

The national production of solid wastes in urban communities amounts to over 800 million pounds daily. This is expected to rise three times that by 1980, and "the ground available for disposal is very short," Dr. First said. "We just don't have the places to put the waste."

NEW ADVANCES

Industrial and technological changes are resulting in the production of ever increasing quantities of refuse, including junked cars, bottles, tin cans, chemicals, paper, construction debris, stoves, refrigerators, old furniture, etc. etc. etc.

Forty-eight billion cans and 26 billion bottles are produced annually and virtually all are discarded. The container industry expanded the problem of solid waste disposal when, in the last several years, it moved to "throwaway" botties, cans and cartons.

Americans living in cities pay each year roughly $3 billion for the collection, transportation, processing and the disposal of solid wastes. Waste disposal is the third largest item on municipality budgets, exceeded only by education and roads.

The three basic methods for solving solid waste problems are reduction of waste production; reclamation, utilization and recycling of waste products, and returning the wastes to the environment via land, air or water.

SOME RESULTS

The most commonly practiced solid waste disposal method in the country is sanitary landfilling, used in several areas for the construction of parks, golf courses and botanic gardens.

A 100-foot-plus high hill in flat northweastern Illinois is being built on garbage fill. When finished it will be used in winter as a ski slope. In Los Angeles County, all solid waste collections are used for landfill to transform steep, dry hills and canyons into public parks and golf courses.

Another method of disposal, incineration, reduces the volume of solid wastes, but the process can also discharge pollutants into the air. One filtration method to eliminate this pollution is the use of activated charcoal, much in the same way it is used to filter certain American cigarettes.

FOR FUEL

Waste is put to use as a fuel source in many European countries, but only on a limited scale in the United States. It is a substantial fuel source, although obviously not as efficient as coal or oil. The Hempstead, N.Y., incinerator uses waste heat to generate power and desalt water for in-plant use.

Some cities are considering compressing their garbage into bales of from one to five tons and dumping them at sea. New York City, Dr. First said, has under consideration a scheme for putting the waste on trains and railing it into Pennsylvania where it would be "stuffed down old coal mines."

Dr. First and the Harvard School of Public Health are studying the use of incinerator ships. Under this plan waste collections would be transported to dockside and transferred to ocean-going vessels, possibly Liberty ships of World War II, now mothballed in the Hudson River. The vessel would be put out to sea, burn the wastes and discharge the residue into deep holes in the ocean floor.

PIPING SYSTEM

Pneumatic piping systems, which operate under pressure to carry the wastes from various locations to an outlying disposal site, have been tested in Sweden.

A major bulk problem is abandoned automobiles. More than six million are junked each year. A new way to handle them is to place them in giant hammer mills and reduce them to small bundles of steel, for which there is a profitable market.

"The total solution," Dr. First said, "is to salvage waste and reuse it."

Today is Saturday, June 29, the 181st day of 1968 with 185 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning star is Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1852 Henry Clay died in Washington.

In 1946 the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews in an attempt to stamp out alleged terrorism in Palestine.

In 1961 the United States orbited three space satellites at the same time.

In 1964 the sister of Cuban Communist premier Fidel Castro defected to Mexico City.

A thought for the day: British author Sir Izaak Walton once said, "Good company and good discourse are the very sinews of virtue."

Unless you have X-ray eyes you can't tell at the beginning of a hand how the missing 26 cards are divided. When you have no better guide, however, you can use probability to steer you to the winning line of play.

TAKES DIAMOND

East took the ace of diamonds and returned the nine to South's king. Now South's contract depended on avoiding the loss of a heart trick.

It was obviously unsound to try for the clubs since there weren't enough entries to dummy to develop and run the suit. South had to ruff out his hearts.

South rejected the idea of leading a trump to the ace and returning a heart for a finesse with the jack. If East had the queen of hearts a safer plan would work.

Instead, declarer cashed the top hearts and ruffed a heart with the eight of spades. If the queen of hearts had fallen, South would be home.

RUFFS DIAMOND

When the queen of hearts refused to drop, South ruffed a diamond and led the jack of hearts. All would still be safe if West failed to follow suit since then South could ruff with dummy's nine of spades without fear of an overruff.

As if happened, West produced the queen of hearts. Now South had to decide whether to ruff with the nine or with the ace of spades. Aruff with the nine would be safe if West had the ten of spades and would be necessary if either opponent had four trumps.

THE ODDS

The odds were only even that West had the ten of spades, but better than 2 to 1 that the five missing spades were divided 3-2. For this reason South ruffed the last heart with dummy's ace of spades. Then he could draw trumps with the K-Q-J and claim his contract.

There's no seller without a buyer!

The store looks big. It employs lots of people...has hundreds of yards–maybe miles–of shelves with tens or even hundreds of thousands of items–all neatly packaged and arranged.

And yet, there's nothing bigger in the store than you. No detergent, no can of soup, no great new frozen idea.

Because no matter how hard the seller sells, if you don't like what he sells–there's no deal.

That's how the system puts you in control. You tell the seller whether you like his wares–or not.

He'll get the message. It's very brief:
"You pays your money and you takes your choice."

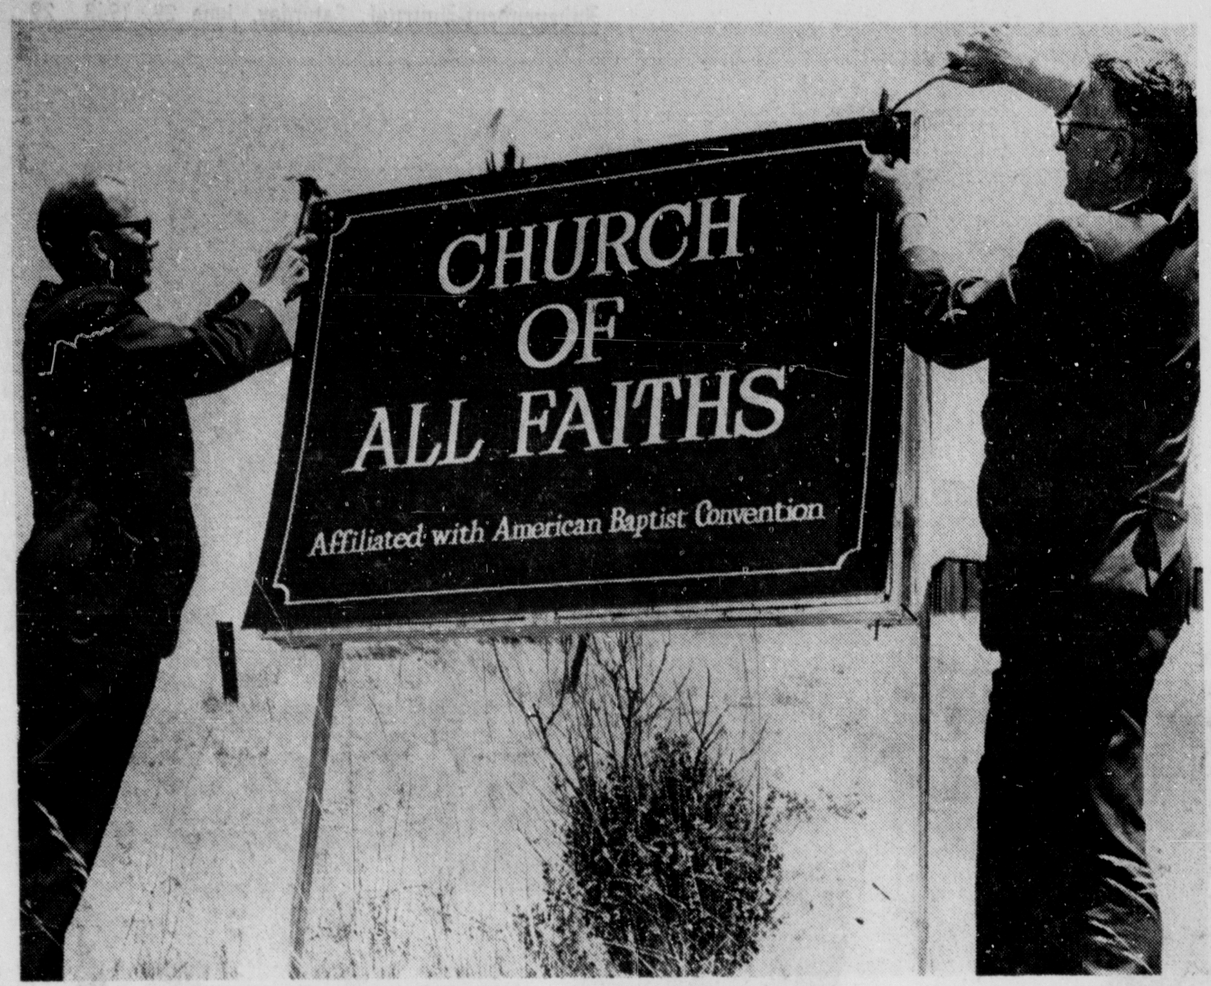
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY



TO CHANGE NAME—The First Baptist Church of Corte Madera will officially become Church of All Faiths tomorrow along with the official installation of its new pastor, Rev. Joseph L. Hughes (left) who gets assistance from Col. Herbert L. Leney, chairman of the church's board of deacons, in putting up the new church sign. (Independent-Journal photo)

The Dogmatic Approach To Religion Hit

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Dr. O. Walter Wagner, ecumenical minister of the Metropolitan Church Federation of Greater St. Louis, says dogmatic religion "is unacceptable to this generation—and rightly so."

THE DEFINITION

He defined dogmatic religion as "the doctrine of the right answers." Dr. Wagner said its result has been the view:

The church is seen as a "holy box on the corner."

The church is "God's house where . . . He is visited once a week."

Religious progress is by "creeds and chants and carnation boutonnieres."

Dr. Wagner said his generation "divided the world community into hostile camps—the Communist bloc and the free world." He said that "cold war dichotomy was made the basis for the selection of candidates for office in politics, education, church and private organizations."

"Intelligent (student) dissent has marked a new stance of student life in this country—a new style of life that has an enormous amount of unfinished business to which it must face up," he said.

THE OLD LOOK

He said some of the "unfinished business . . . includes the students' future acceptance of co-existence in political philosophies, pluralism in economic patterns, and genuine racial and religious authenticity for all people."

Many Americans "wistfully yearn for the 'good old days' when individual talents were more easily recognized and appreciated," Dr. Wagner said. He praised the university students for their "search for identity—in a society where there is bound to be more organization and more automation."

He said the "now-generation has the prodigious task of preserving personhood in a world that is undergoing social change with unprecedented speed."

CHANGE COMING?—These elaborately armored young men may soon be the thing of the past at the Vatican. It is rumored that Pope Paul VI is planning some changes in the Swiss Guard — the world's smallest and most old-fashioned army. (UPI Telephoto)

TO INSTALL PASTOR

Church Changing Name Tomorrow

Believing in greater community emphasis, the First Baptist Church of Corte Madera, has officially changed its name to Church of All Faiths.

The official change will come tomorrow as the church formally installs its new pastor, Rev. Josph L. Hughes at 3:30 p.m. ceremony.

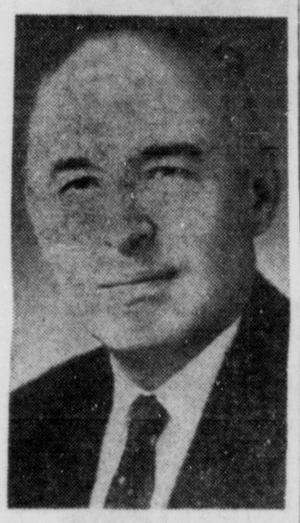
According to Reverend Hughes there were 35 names submitted by the membership with Church of All Faiths being favored.

Participating in the installation and name change rites will be Rev. Douglas L. Siden, area minister for the American Baptist Churches of Northern California, who will give the charge to the minister and congregation.

Also Dr. Russell S. Orr, executive minister of the church, who will give the covenant of dedication.

Others who will take part in the service will include Col. Herber C. Leney, chairman of the board of deacons and church moderator; Dr. Ralph D. Fortune of the San Anselmo First Baptist Church; Edward W. Colthurst, mayor of Corte Madera; Supervisor Thomas T. Storer.

Also Rev. Frank Evans of the Community Congregation Church of Tiburon; Rev. Thomas B. Robb, a member of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Aselmo, and Dr. Fred I. Drexler, a retired denominational executive now living in Mill Valley.



AT SEMINARY — Dr. Edward A. McDowell Jr. (above), guest professor at the Golden Gate Seminary at Strawberry, will offer a special refresher course for pastors beginning July 9 for 10 days. Also to begin work at the seminary is James C. Bradley (below) as assistant professor of religious education.

Branch Of Lutheranism Reorganizes

FERGUS FALLS, Minn. (LC) — The Church of the Lutheran Brethren of America has elected a new president and reorganized the structure of the 68-year-old denomination at its annual convention here.

Rev. Everald Strom of Moorhead, Minn., was named president last week succeeding Rev. D. A. Erickson of Fergus Falls, who had held the office 13 years.

Chosen as treasurer was Rev. Ted Thompsen of Bergenfield, N. J., who succeeds Rev. H. S. Olsen of Fergus Falls, Minn., who served 16 years.

The office of president and treasurer are full-time posts. Reverends Erickson and Olsen are returning to the parish ministry.

Rev. Donald Brue of Portland, Ore., was elected first vice president and Rev. Robert Overgaard of Brooklyn, N. Y., second vice president. Both are district presidents.

The church was organized at Milwaukee in 1900, accepting as members only those who subscribe to the Lutheran teachings and who profess a personal experience of salvation. Its churches are nonliturgical and its pastors do not wear clerical robes. The denomination has about 6,000 members, with 67 congregations and 20 independent affiliated churches.

China's Catholic Count Greater On The Outside

ROME (UPI)—The number of Chinese Catholics living outside China has more than tripled in the 15 years between 1953 and 1968, according to the Catholic missionary news service, Fides.

There now are 624,000 overseas Chinese Catholics, comaccording to Bishop Charles van Melckebeke of Ningsia, Apostolic Visitor for Overseas Chinese, who collected the data. He said the increases are due to new arrivals and better information as well as new baptisms.

Of the current total, Bishop van Melckebeke said, two-thirds remain in Asia, with 145,000 in Indonesia alone. Nearly 30,000 are now in the United States, including 13,400 in Hawaii.

Episcopal Church Converted Nightclub

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—St. James Episcopal Church in Petionville, a suburb of Port-au-Prince, is a converted Haitian nightclub. Pews circle the former dance floor and the pulpit is on the bandstand.

Rev. Gerald Carnes is delighted with his heritage.

"We are continuing to make a joyful noise unto the Lord," he said.

Canoles Announces Tomorrow's Topic

"When Gold Turns to Brass" is the topic of the 9:30 a.m. sermon tomorrow by Rev. John J. Canoles, assistant pastor of the Novato Presbyterian Church, 710 Wilson Avenue.

Rev. C. M. Croughan, the regular pastor will return from vacation for the July 7 service.

Being Restored

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Convent of Oxolotan, in the Mexican state of Tabasco, is being restored as a tourist attraction, according to the Mexican National Tourist Council. The convent, built by Franciscan monks in 1633, was a base for missionaries and a way station for Spanish conquistadors.

HEAVY ARMOR

New Look Looms For Papal Guard

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The world's smallest and most old-fashioned army is getting ready to take on a new look.

Pope Paul VI, who is changing a lot of other things in the Catholic Church, has plans to make some changes in his Swiss Guards as well.

No one yet knows what they will be, but some of the guards themselves think he will strip away the armor plating and Spanish casque helmets that have been a feature of the Swiss Guard costume for four centuries.

ARMOR HEAVY

"I certainly hope so," said one guard officer. "It would be a relief not to have to carry around all that heavy armor."

If the armor goes, the long halberds the guards carry also may be abolished, leaving the guards in blue berets and the billowy yellow, orange and blue striped uniforms attributed to Michelangelo that have long made them one of the world's most photogenic armies.

There are only a handful of craftsmen left in Rome who fashion the armor plate and halberds for the guards. The craft has been handed down from father to son for centuries, but it is gradually dying out.

That, however, is not the reason for the pope's planned reform. He has a distaste for any remnants of militarism in present-day ceremonials.

NEW ORDERS

Shortly after his election he ordered the Palatine guards to stop carrying rifles on duty. Most of them didn't know how to fire a gun anyway.

The Swiss Guards have been the elite bodyguard of the Pope since the Vatican was a temporal power controlling wide areas of Italian territory.

They fought their most memorable battle May 6, 1527, when mercenary troops of the Emperor Charles V stormed into the Vatican and attacked the vastly outnumbered guards. The mercenaries killed 147 of them, but 42 escaped with Pope Clement VII through a secret passage to the nearby Castle Sant'Angelo.

In recent times their duties have been limited to standing guard outside the papal apartments and Vatican gates day and night and accompanying the Pope during various ceremonials.

There have been recurrent rumors the Pope plans to abolish the Swiss Guards, but Vatican sources say it isn't true. The Pope himself said recently, when he abolished the blue-blood noble guards, that he would retain the Swiss Guards who have served Popes since the 14th Century.

The number of guards has been reduced twice in recent years—from 132 to 100 by the late Pope John XXIII and then to 75 by Pope Paul.

SMALL NUMBER

But according to guard officials, the actual number fluctuates between 65 and 68.

"We are always short," said one officer. "We get about 70 applications every year, but only about 18 or 20 ever qualify."

To qualify a man must be a Swiss citizen under 25, single and at least five-feet-eight in height. He also must have completed military service in Switzerland and come from a Catholic family.

The tour of duty is two years and few guardsmen re-enlist after that, although one officer has completed 23 years with the unit.

The pay is generally lower than the men could earn in Switzerland, but an officer said guardsmen do not enlist with the idea of making money.

"Most of them want a chance to get to know Rome, to learn Italian and to serve the Pope and the Holy See," he said.

Novatan Will Be Baha'is Speaker

Fred Babo, Novato real estate broker, will speak on "Where Are We in Eternity?" at a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow of the Baha'is of Marin.

The meeting will be held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Gibson, 30 Grande Paseo in Marinwood.

Babo will consider religion as a progressive, evolutionary process.

"When the love of God is established, everything will be realized."

AT AGES 56 and 55, western favorites Roy Rogers and his wife Dale Evans look much the same as they did when they were starring regularly in cowboy movies. And, while in semi-retirement, they continue to lead active, busy lives.

Retired Cowboy King And His Leading Lady Busier Than Ever

By GENE HANDSAKER

APPLE VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — As the desert's crook-armed Joshua trees cast early-morning shadows, a beige Lincoln Continental drives away from a five-bedroom adobe house.

At the wheel, starting another busy day in what is supposed to be partial retirement, sits a man of modest manner and several sides.

Actor . . . singer . . . innkeeper . . . investor . . . "America's Outstanding Indian of 1967" . . . big-game hunter . . . race-horse trainer . . . and popular spokesman for his Christian faith. He's Roy Rogers, once "King of the Cowboys" in movies and television.

AT 56 HE looks much as he did from 1943 through 1954 when he was No. 1 at the boxoffice among western stars. Brown-haired, with blue eyes twinkling through crinkly slits, he fits neatly the cowboy clothes he still wears.

Three years ago Rogers and co-star Dale Evans, his wife of 20 years, moved to this mountain-rimmed valley 100 miles east of Hollywood. There had been some tough personal blows.

Death took three of the nine children they acquired through adoption and two marriages each. In 1958 Roy got a heart-artery constriction he has learned to live with.

THEIR PLAN here, says Dale, was "semi-retirement. But it seems we're busier than we've been in years."

Roy explains: "You get nervous sittin' around with nothin' to do. I don't think people were meant to retire unless they're hurtin' someplace."

His first stop on an average morning now is at his horse farm.

INSIDE, ATTRACTIVELY displayed, are a lifetime's collection of thousands of trophies, treasures and trifles.

Some 65,000 visitors have gone through the museum since Roy opened it last year. He mingles with them, signing autograph books and answering questions as out-of-towners snap pictures for the folks back home.

Roy and Dale haven't performed regularly since they finished their 101 singing shoot-'em-ups for television in 1956. But they do TV specials and the series is still showing as re-runs in many areas, providing fresh crops of young fans.

IN HIS knotty-pine office he reads letters and telegrams and dictates replies to a secretary. Next he visits the 101-unit inn he leased in 1964 at two million dollars for 25 years. He's in and out of both places most of the day.

Dale, meanwhile, is working on her ninth inspirational book — unless she's off giving a religious talk somewhere.

She, too, looks about the same: blonde, green-eyed, cool and trim in a Western-cut blue wool suit, with creamy Stetson. She's a year younger than Roy, but both could pass for a decade younger than their real ages.

Does she miss Hollywood?

"WE'RE SO busy I don't have time to miss anything," said Dale. "The books and speaking appearances have taken up the slack for me."

They make recordings, do four or five TV specials or guest appearances a year and in July will perform for two weeks in a Reno nightclub.

From family photos to Roy's first cowboy boots, bronzed, the museum chronicles their lives.

One plaque, from the American Indian Exposition, Anadarko, Okla., honors him as "America's Outstanding Indian Citizen of 1967."

Roy, born Leonard Slye in Cincinnati, said he's "about one-thirty-second Choctaw," and otherwise German, Scottish and Irish.

DALE WAS born Frances Octavia Smith in Uvalde, Tex., and there are photos of her as a young radio and band singer. There are mother-of-the-year awards.

One display combines symbols of Protestant and Roman Catholic faiths.

Both said their faith has sustained them through tragedy and setbacks.

"I don't think we could've handled some of them," said Roy. "We'd have gone off the deep end.

"IN THE Bible it doesn't say you're going to get by without having troubles. Every family has 'em, some way or another.

TOO MUCH REALISM

'Glamor Is Gone,' Wails Lovely Lana

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Lana Turner misses the good old days when actresses had "It," glamor ruled Hollywood, and movies built a dream world.

In Mexico City where she was filming "The Big Cube," her first picture in three years, the 48-year-old former "Sweater Girl" complained that "there's no glamor any more."

"The days when an actor or actress had to work in picture after picture before reaching star status are gone. Nowadays, an actor makes one movie and suddenly he's a star," she said.

THE DAYS OF "It," "Oomph" and "Sweater Girls" are gone, Lana said.

"So many of the kids who come up today are so much alike you can't tell them apart. They wear the same hairdos, miniskirts, smiles and makeup. They copy each other.

"They don't have that whatever-it-is that makes them different. The only one I've seen come along in years who may have that little 'extra' is Julie Christie."

MISS TURNER who was Hollywood's reigning sex goddess for many years, and responsible for the wave of girls bearing the name "Lana" today, associates the "lack of glamor" with the realistic trend in films.

"The public wants to see pictures which are entertaining, and not films concerning problems that could almost be their own — or are close to it — actors who are practically no different than they are.

"Motion pictures should be illusions like they used to be — a dream world."

ACCORDING TO Lana, she's been reading books, plays and scripts for the last three years, looking for something to do that would be dignified.

"This was the first one I read," she said, referring to "The Big Cube." "It's entertaining, although it deals with a realistic situation of today. . . . But it's also a part that is dramatic and has dignity. And that's important to me.

"Acting has been my life. I don't know anything else, and I'd die if I couldn't act. But if the part is not what I want, I'll just twiddle my thumbs and do nothing."

The Negro And The Fourth Of July

While Brothers Were Enslaved, A Race Refused To Celebrate

Fourth of July is a time when Americans focus a particularly prideful attention upon the history of their country.

One long neglected aspect of American history, however, is only beginning to receive the attention that it deserves.

That is the history of the American Negro.

The role played by the Negro through the decades in the birth and development of America is only starting to be recognized. But this Fourth of July, 1968, will find more Americans, black and white, aware of it than ever before.

THIS IS THANKS, in part to such courses as "The History of the American Negro," introduced last spring at Dominican College in San Rafael, and being repeated this summer.

And to such instructors as Mary Adebonojo, a teacher of humanities at Dominican and the instructor in the Negro history course.

From Mrs. Adebonojo, many of her students learn for the first time:

1. That some 5,000 Negroes fought in the American Revolution, and that the first man killed in that war for independence was a black man named Crispis Attucks.

2. That for a century after America won its independence from England, American Negroes resolutely refused to observe the Fourth of July.

"IN A BURST of idealistic fervor after the American Revolution," Mrs. Adebonojo says, "the Northern states freed their slaves. But the former slaves refused to celebrate the Fourth of July until their black brothers in the South were also free."

It was not until well after Abraham Lincoln's Proclamation of Emancipation that the Negro, or black or Afro-American, as many of them today prefer to be called, really began to join to some extent in the Fourth of July festivities.

Instead, the Negro had observed a holiday of sorts on July 5.

In 1832, Peter Osborne, who voiced one of the earliest recorded protests against race discrimination and abuse in the United States, said in the New Haven African Church:

"FELLOW CITIZENS: On account of the misfortune of our color, our Fourth of July comes on the Fifth; but I hope and trust that when the Declaration of Independence is fully executed, which declares that all men, without respect to person, were born free and equal, we may then have our Fourth of July on the Fourth . . ."

This theme was repeated in 1852 when Frederick Douglass, runaway slave and abolitionist lecturer, was guest speaker at the July 4 celebration in Rochester, N. Y., where he presented a horrifying picture of the plight of the American slave on that day, ending with the words "for revolting barbarity and shameless hypocrisy, America reigns without a rival."

And Mrs. Adebonojo points out that as recently as 1963, in his famous "I Have a Dream" speech, Martin Luther King said: "When the architects of our republic wrote the magnificent words of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, they were signing a promissory note to which every American was to fall heir. . . . Instead of honoring this sacred obligation, America has given the Negro people a bad check; which has come back marked 'insufficient funds'."

"THE SPIRIT of the Declaration of Independence that brought about the American nation and today's independent African and Asian states is also the ideology behind the black power movement," claims Mrs. Adebonojo. "Rather than a program of violence or black dominance, to the Negro black power represents the desire of a people to control its own destiny by utilizing its own economic, political and cultural resources."

Mrs. Adebonojo charges that our traditional history courses in schools have long been almost exclusively concerned with the technological and cultural contributions of white civilizations, with a tendency to promote a belief in the inferiority of the contributions of the non-white people of the world.

NEGRO HISTORY COURSES such as the one being taught at Dominican College in San Rafael are bringing home to many Americans for the first time appreciation of the prominent roles played by black Americans in the country's political life. Names such as, left to right, Lyman Trumbull, U. S. senator from Illinois; John Roy Lynch, congressman from Mississippi; William Pitt Fessenden, senator from Maine, and Pinckney Benton Stewart Pinchback, lieutenant governor of Louisiana, emerge from the obscurity to which they have been relegated. And the new wave of Negro leaders that has forged to the front in American political life, such as Thurgood Marshall, right, associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, takes on added interest and significance. The pictures are reproduced from materials used by Mary Adebonojo in her teaching at Dominican College.

MARY ADEBONOJO, Dominican College instructor in humanities, consults with Sister M. Marguerite, O.P., head librarian, concerning the growing collection of books, journals and periodicals about the American Negro that has been added recently to Archbishop Alemany Library at the college. Many of the publications in this burgeoning field were not even available a few years ago. The books are being placed on reserve as supplemental reading for the current six-weeks summer course on the "History of the American Negro" which began at the college in San Rafael last Monday.

"Only in recent times have we seen an upswing in the publication and reprint of titles concerning black history and culture with courses that prepare teachers in elementary and secondary schools to handle this relevant subject in the classroom."

THE TEACHER believes that "only through understanding different races, cultures and religions can one learn to respect the individual, as varied as he may be."

Mrs. Adebonojo launched her pilot program with 43 students and teachers enrolled in the spring and is offering the course again this summer for the six-week session that began last Monday.

Dominican College has responded further to the demand for still more knowledge in this area and will introduce another course next fall titled "The Negro Voice in American Literature." Mrs. Adebonojo will repeat the history course next spring and add an anthropology course on "Sub-Sahara Africa."

To sustain these courses, the Dominican College Archbishop Alemany Library is building a growing collection of books, journals and periodicals now coming on the market, as well as reprints from old documents.

ACCORDING TO the head librarian, Sister M. Marguerite, O.P., this will be a burgeoning field in publishing within the next five years. She states that one publisher alone has just announced 450 titles in reprints concerning American Negroes to be issued next year.

A major problem Mrs. Adebonojo foresees is the adequate preparation of teachers to introduce material on black studies at the elementary and secondary levels. She notes with approval that Tamalpais High School District is currently experimenting with several courses in Marin to determine the best approach to the subject.

Mrs. Adebonojo has made herself available as a consultant to groups such as housewives in Greenbrae who reacted to the recent assassinations by forming a neighborhood committee to gain community support for a movement urging their school district trustees to offer a unit on minority cultures in their elementary schools.

THE GROUP, led by Mrs. Stewart N. Boxer of 286 North Almenar Drive, now numbers 18.

In stating their goal, Mrs. Boxer said: "We believe that the hope lies with our children. If they can be taught to appreciate, respect and understand each other, love will follow; and surely we will have a better world. . . ."

As a teacher and the mother of three sons, Mrs. Adebonojo concurs wholeheartedly with this approach.

Although she grew up in Washington, D. C., Mary Adebonojo earned her Bachelor's Degree from Radcliffe College in Massachussetts and her Master's Degree from University of California at Berkeley. She lives in San Anselmo with her Nigerian husband, Dr. Festus Adebonojo, a San Rafael pediatrician.

Marin Living

ABOVE, the living room in the model home at Mariner Green in Corte Madera is an example of good taste and elegance. The luxurious shag carpet of acrylan offers both decor and durability. A sliding glass wall opens onto a private patio.

AT LEFT, this room can be used as a dinette, as a family room, or as a combination of both. Colors are bright and cheerful. And here, as throughout the model house, contemporary California art has been used to good effect. (Photos by Bob Hax)

THE DINING AREA of the Mariner Green model house opens to a private patio, and also connects through swinging doors to the kitchen with its Hotpoint appliances.

THE PSYCHEDELIC influence is apparent in the den which, with its convertible sleeper sofa, doubles as a guest bedroom.

A FRILLY bedroom such as this in the model townhouse at Mariner Green is dear to the heart of any little girl.

THE MASTER BEDROOM of the model home has its own private deck as well as private bath and dressing wing.

AT MARINER GREEN

New Model Home Serves As Decor And Art Showplace

Vibrant colors and original California art give the decor of the new model home at Mariner Green a fresh appeal that unfailingly impresses the visitor.

In the living room, the visitor is immediately attracted to a Carmel scene by Montague that hangs over the handsome sofa upholstered in brass tone wall brocade.

On another wall, there is an abstract by William Morehouse.

FLANKING THE sofa are two octagonal chests of pecan wood, supporting two massive lamps. Arm chairs upholstered in a gold plush fabric are adjacent to the round coffee table, also of pecan. A wood-burning fireplace sets a homey tone, as does the enclosed patio separated from the dining and living areas by sliding glass walls.

A pedestal table is enhanced by high-backed chairs with black leather upholstery.

Adjoining the all-electric kitchen with its eye-level Hotpoint stove and other appliances is the family room and dinette. This has been furnished in white wrought iron. The table is set with dashing Italian platters, instead of plates. Chairs are upholstered in yellow and white.

A LOUVERED section separates the room from the main entry.

A lettuce-green shag carpet is used throughout the main living area and up the stairs to the two bedrooms (one of which has been furnished as a den) and the master suite with its own private deck.

One bedroom is furnished as a young girl's room in French provincial of white and gold. A sprigged polyester spread and canopy makes for easy care.

The den is "mod" and reflects the psychedelic trend. A black leather hide-a-bed converts the room into a guest bedroom when necessary. An authentic zebra skin hangs over a Herman Miller desk. Glass and chrome tables, also by Miller, add to the sophisticated feeling, as does the "quatrefoil" oil painting by Geoffrey Bowman.

THE MASTER bedroom is spacious, with its own dressing area and private reflection deck. Two handsome pictures set off the bed, which has a spread of multi-color flowers. A red velvet ladies chair provides an interesting contrast.

Pecan wood has been used for the double dresser and night stands.

One wall features a scene of Puget Sound painted by Robert E. Wood of San Bernardino, which won first place in a 1964 watercolor competition in Los Angeles. A red floral serigraph by Guy McCoy dominates another wall.

The model home which also serves as something of a gallery for fine modern California paintings is open for public inspection daily.

MARINER GREEN is reached by taking the Paradise Drive turn-off at Corte Madera and continuing one block past the Paradise Shopping Center, then turning right on Prince Royal Drive. Signs direct the motorist on to Mariner Green Court where the model home and a sales office are located.

The Mariner Green townhouse community features the joint operation by its residents of such facilities and services as a large enclosed natatorium for year-around swimming, exterior lighting and maintenance, gardening and property management.

They Keep Alive Culture Of Old Japan

Marin's Nakayoshi Club Blends Best Of The East And Of The West

A teen-age Japanese-American girl can rock with the best of them at the Junior Prom or the Senior Ball.

But that very weekend, the same girl could be daintily attired in silk kimono and swaying to the lilting tunes of the samisen or koto.

This blending of the East and the West — the capacity to adopt the new and still retain the traditional cultures of old Japan — has been the aim of the Marin Nakayoshi (Friendship) Club since its modest beginnings back in 1951.

THAT WAS 17 years ago, when a half dozen women of Japanese descent got together for tea and coffee at the Mill Valley home of Mrs. May Murata, drawn together by a common cultural background and the universal need for small talk about children, family and neighbors. They were of all ages and varied backgrounds, but each had been exposed to a smattering of the Oriental cultures, either through formal Japanese education or through the influence of their parents.

"My daughter doesn't even know how to tie an obi (Japanese sash)," said one.

"I don't even know myself," laughed another.

THE GERM OF an idea had been planted: Why not get together socially each month at various homes for flower arranging, bonsai, folk dancing or just plain chit-chat?

That first group in 1951 numbered nine. The circle of friends grew, and their husbands, who were supposed to be stoic and inscrutable, turned out to be as human as the rest. At first curious, then intrigued, they began popping up at the "women's social gatherings."

By 1958, the group had become so infiltrated by men that the women called for a reorganization and threw the club open to the opposite sex. Thus was born the Marin Nakayoshi Club, a formal organization with officers, dues and articles of incorporation, naming it as a nonprofitable charitable organization dedicated to promoting better understanding in Japanese-

THE THEME of the 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair, "Bridge to Kyoto," is colorfully illustrated by two members of the Marin Japanese-American Nakayoshi Club, Mrs. George Shiro of Corte Madera, left, and Mrs. George Takahashi of Mill Valley, and by Mrs. Kiyo Hirokane of San Rafael, right, president of the Marin Buddhist Women's League, in their authentic Kyoto kimono attire. The Kyoto costume, particularly high-styled and featuring a butterfly obi, is worn only in that cultural region, and usually only by the single girls. Cost of a complete outfit can run into hundreds of dollars.

JOINING FORCES to run a restaurant at next week's 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair in Ross will be members of the Marin Nakayoshi Club and the Marin Buddhist Church. Mrs. Kiyoshi Kawahata of Corte Madera, left, and Mrs. Seiko Goins of Novato prepare norimaki-sushi, made by rolling rice into a sheet of seaweed and then slicing it. It will be among the Japanese and American dishes they will be serving hungry fair patrons.

TODAY THE club, headed by Herbert Okubo of Mill Valley, boasts a membership that fluctuates between 60 and 70, ranging from youths to grandfathers.

This year with the naming of George Murata, two-term former president, as designer of the 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair, Wednesday through July 7, and with "Bridge to Kyoto" designated as the fair theme, the Nakayoshi Club jumped into fair preparations on almost every level. In cooperation with the Marin Buddhist Church, the members will run a restaurant and sushi bar that will feature a variety of Japanese dishes as

"What Happened to My Pink Knit Suit?"

You are right in being disturbed over the color change in the skirt of your pink suit. The top and skirt of your suit are joined together at the waist. Because the entire suit was cleaned at the same time, in the same manner, the change in color cannot be the fault of the cleaning. We have encountered this problem before.

The color difference is the result of the skirt and top, though sewn together, being made from two different bolts of fabric, each colored in different dye lots. Each section reacted differently to dry cleaning. You have seen what happened to your pink suit. This is the explanation as to why. Your dry cleaner has no control over what happened. The cause was in the manufacture of the garment.

Every funeral fairly priced

There is never any overspending at Russell & Gooch's. It is our policy that when a family arranges a funeral service they should be free to select not only the services and facilities they prefer, but dispense with the items of service they do not consider necessary as well. Thus Russell & Gooch has eliminated the "packaged" concept and cut conventional funeral costs. This new concept, the Selective Service Plan, reduces funeral cost by eliminating and not charging for those items which some families consider unnecessary.

At Russell & Gooch's, families can tailor the funeral service to their exact wishes and financial requirements. There are three types of service to select from: Regular service, Budget service and Minimum service. Information on any aspect of funeral service is gladly given without obligation. THE TEA CEREMONY is an essential part of Japanese culture. So in the spirit of the "Bridge to Kyoto" theme of the 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair, George Murata, fair designer and Nakayoshi Club member, and Marcelle B. McCoy, fair manager, pause before the magnolia graniflora tree on the wooded fairgrounds for the relaxing ritual.

JAPANESE DANCING will be part of the entertainment on the Northgate Stage each evening of the 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair, opening Wednesday in Ross. Four young members of the Nakayoshi Club, left to right, Janice Okubara of Mill Valley, Sandy Kawamoto of Mill Valley, Linda Kuwatani of Tiburon, and Carol Shimoda of Corta Madera (playing the samisen) demonstrate the typical "odori" or Japanese dance.

NAKAYOSHI CLUB member Joe Shiro of Mill Valley poses before the Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center, which will be the scene of the Bay Area-wide art competition during the five-day county fair. In the proper position, he demonstrates "sumi," or the art of handwriting, a required accomplishment of the cultured person in Japan.

The Fair Takes On An Oriental Flair

well as some American ones through the five-day run of the fair at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

May Murata, well-known Japanese dancer and acknowledged by the Japanese consul office in San Francisco as being "one of the best in the business," will dance nightly on the Northgate Stage at the Ross center with the Hanayagi dancers from the Japanese School of Dance in Oakland.

THE CLUB, as a group, dragged out yards of Oriental gear and props and spent a Saturday posing for pictures, helping to publicize the fair, which opens Wednesday at 6 p.m.

The club is no stranger to civic and community projects. They have been involved since the organization's inception.

The row of cherry trees lining the entrance to the Marin Civic Center in Santa Venetia was a club donation, the idea of William Shimizu of Mill Valley.

Three bazaars have been held with a fourth coming up this August. Annual Obon Festivals and January New Year celebrations have also received public attention.

BESIDES MURATA and Akira Otsuka of San Rafael, both of whom have served two terms each as president, others to hold that office have been Kiyo Kawahata of Corte Madera; James Hirai, Hardie Honda and Masao Segi, all of Tiburon; Roy Okubara of Mill Valley, and Wat Takeshita of San Rafael.

WILLIAM TOBA of San Rafael, Marin Gardeners Association president and Nakayoshi Club member, poses with some of his bonsai trees including a rare exposed-root Japanese maple to illustrate the importance of the Oriental art of tree-dwarfing in the 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair program.

The club also has a staff of instructors available to teach Japanese arts and culture. They include: Kenneth Osaki of Mill Valley, bonsai; Mrs. Yoshi Kawai of Livermore, doll-making; Sachiko Hattori of San Francisco, ikebana "kodo-ryu" style; Mrs. Yoshi Kawai, ikebana "shofu-ryu" style; Sachiko Hattori, tea ceremony "omote senke" style; May Murata, folk-dancing "hanayagi" style; Jim Maruyama of Novato, shigin (singing) "ginkon" style, and Kiyoshi Kuwatani of Mill Valley, shigin "kinyukai" style.

The Nakayoshi Club's goal is no secret. It is to build a Japanese cultural center in Marin where all the arts and music from Japan can be taught and displayed.

While the members of this Japanese-American organization are of all faiths and creeds, most are Nisei. However, there are several Caucasian members who share, with the Japanese and the Nisei, a fondness for the music, culture and arts of old Japan, as well as the desire to promote friendship among all the races in Marin County.

The Fair Is Over, But Expo '67 Legacy Remains

The Travel Pages

On two islands in the St. Lawrence River — against a backdrop of towering skyscrapers and the mountain that gives this city its name — the city of Montreal has created a park-fair-amusement complex that is unique.

It's the site of Canada's Expo '67, the biggest and most successful world's fair ever held.

The science-fiction type buildings were designed and constructed by nations around the world.

But the present complex is the concept of the city of Montreal, with an atmosphere and flair for showmanship that is typically French.

TRUE TO THE theme, "Man and His World," you can still eat and drink your way around the world in the 56 restaurants and bars, and buy souvenirs from all corners of the globe in the charming small boutiques in various parts of the 1,000-acre complex.

But also true to the original concept of the world's fair, commercialism has been kept to a minimum.

The entrance fees of $2.50 for adults, $1 for children (less for holders of weekly or season visas) entitles the visitor to ride the express free of charge throughout the islands, admission to all the pavilions and free entertainment which seems to materialize from nowhere, all over the grounds. The visitor can also roam at will through the Venice-like setting of canals and bridges, trees and parkland picnic grounds, gardens and statuary.

PAVILION DISPLAYS have been designed to appeal to all ages, and for the very young there are nurseries, special playgrounds and pushcarts.

"Biosphere," the geodetic 13-story dome designed for the United States Pavilion, now echoes to the splash of fountains in formal gardens and the raucous call of exotic, gaily-plumed birds.

The inverted pyramid that distinguished Expo's Canadian Pavilion now points the way to a 30-minute film sequence that combines spectacular color movies with cartoons to provide a picture of pioneer life in North America.

IN LAST YEAR'S Ontario Pavilion, the sleighs and turn-of-the-century scenes of the "Face of Winter" display awaken nostalgic memories in grandfather, as the modern generation stands enthralled while the blacksmith heats the iron red hot and beats it into horseshoes.

Cars of yesteryear have been painted and installed in attractive settings in one half of what once was the British Pavilion, while the acoustic properties of the tower have been adapted to create an auditorium for semi-classical music.

Canada's National Film Board has taken over last year's Australian Pavilion for its "Year of the Land" display of outstanding photographs, and photography buffs now sit on the wall-to-wall Australian wool carpet to savor the scene.

ACROSS THE road, the history of the cinema is told in picture and poster, and youngsters can whirl a wheel that provides the optical illusion that later was adapted to make film cartoons. In this particular drum, each man appears to detach the head from his shoulders and hand it to his neighbor.

Pretty girls in mini skirts push gay red and white carts laden with flowers, and flowers grow everywhere.

Boys in the uniforms of the historic 17th Century Compagnie Franche de la Marine, which once defended New France, parade through the cobblestone streets of the old French village which has been created in La Ronde, the amusement park.

MINI-RAIL, three-wheel mechanized taxis, motorized gondolas and little trains called "balades" provide sightseeing trips or pay-as-you-ride transportation.

Or you can sit in the sun, sip wine, and watch the world go by; drink German beer and join in a rousing singsong; enjoy a long cool drink from the Caribbean — enjoying some of the most relaxed drinking laws in North America.

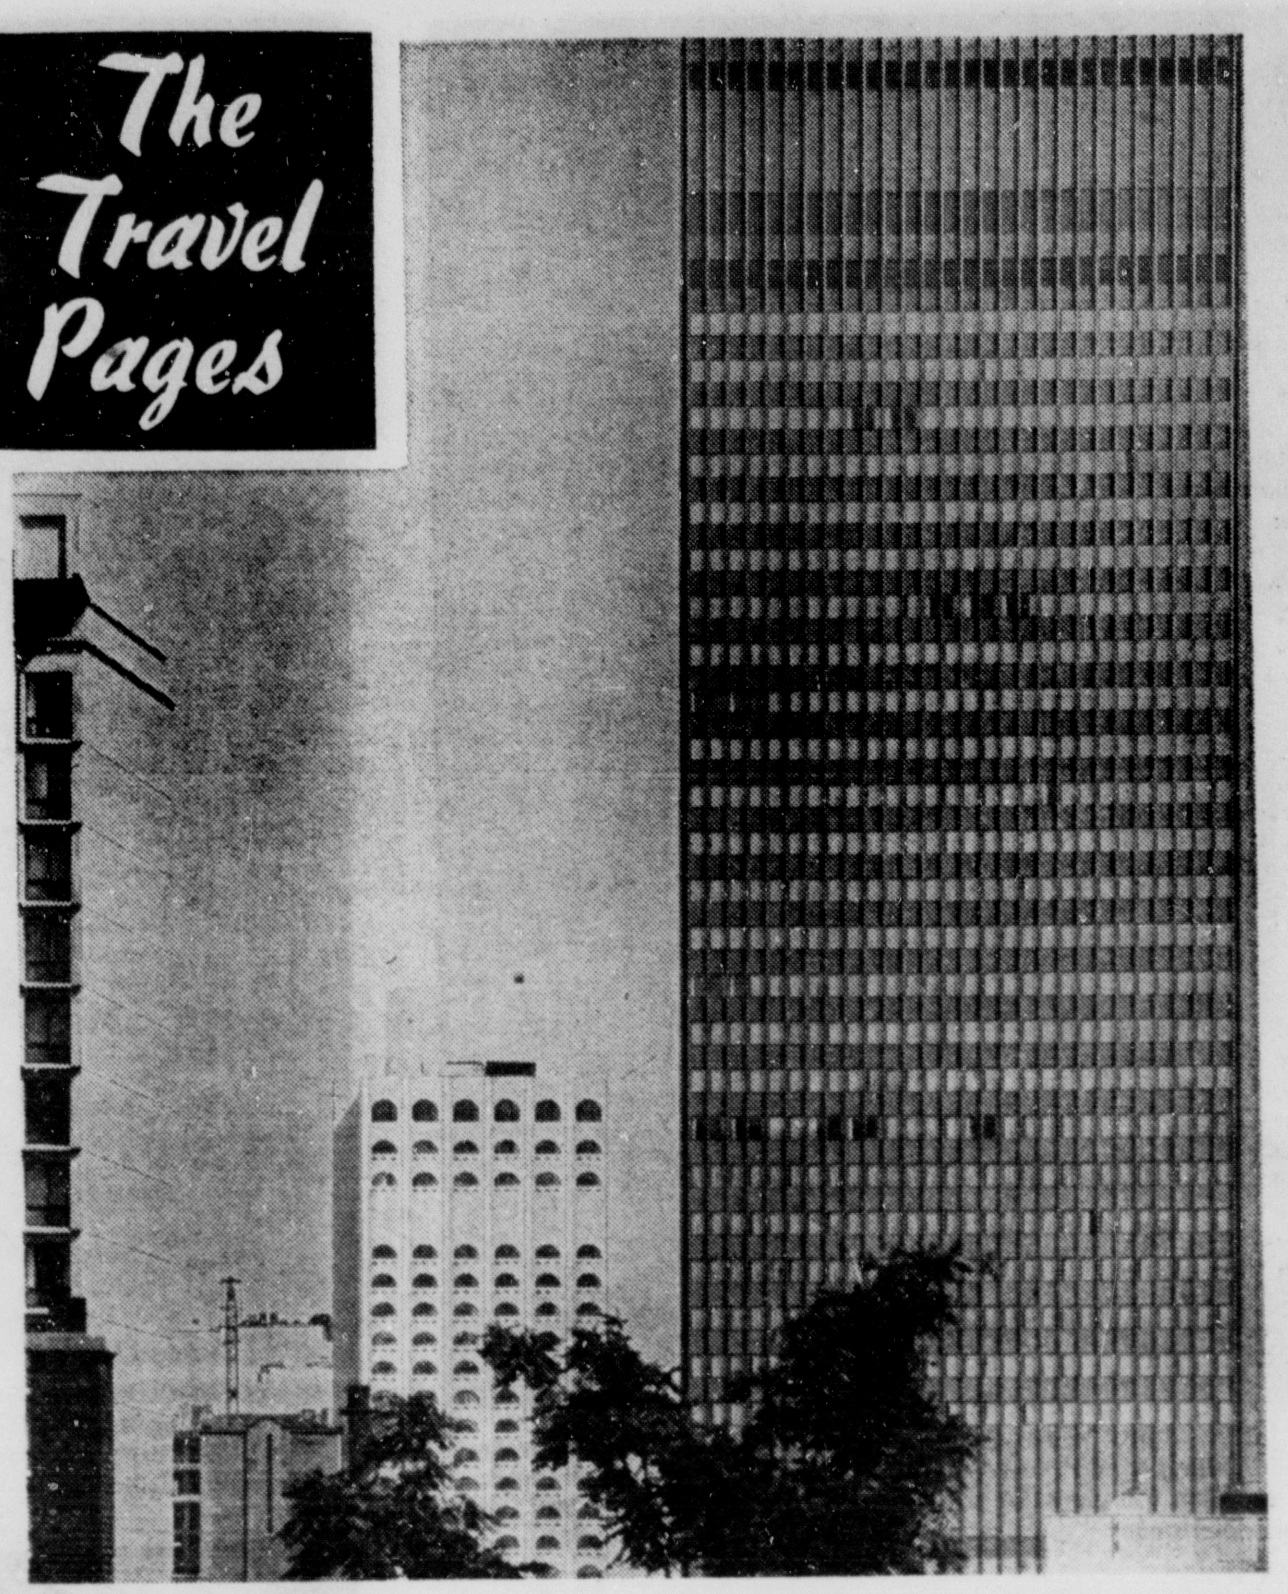
Folders and additional details may be obtained from the Municipal Tourist Bureau, Montreal, Canada.



SKYSCRAPER HOTELS such as the Moorish-style Chateau Champlain are part of Montreal's lasting legacy from its Expo '67 world fair and Canada's 1967 centennial celebration. The fairgrounds have been transformed into a permanent "Man and His World" summer exhibition. (Canadian Government Travel Bureau photo)

Historic Old London Gets A Face Lift

Many of her most noble and ancient landmarks are getting the beauty treatment.

St. Paul's Cathedral has been restored to its 17th Century splendor. Most of the government buildings near Westminster Abbey have been cleaned of the grime of the ages, revealing soft colors in their stone and brickwork.

Now comes the turn of Trafalgar Square and the famous Nelson's Column, which is being cleaned from head to toe. It's the first cleaning of the 170 foot granite column in its 123-year life-span. Nelson himself had a wash and brush a few years ago — he's so popular with the pigeons!

The nearby National Gallery, National Portrait Gallery and Admiralty Arch are next on the list.

Other landmarks on the cleaning list are the Bank of England and Wellington Arch at Hyde Park Corner. Incidentally, the latter houses London's smallest police station which holds only two people at a time!

The Fourth With The Original Americans

Indian Dancers To Perform At Old San Miguel Mission

Marinites on the look for something unusual in the way of a Fourth of July celebration might direct their attention toward the old Mission San Miguel seven miles north of Paso Robles on Highway 101.

There an internationally acclaimed troupe of full-blooded Indian dancers will begin five days of authentic tribal ritual on Thursday, Independence Day.

The performances, at 10:30 a.m., noon, 1:30 p.m., 3 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., will be free to the public, through July 8.

THE DANCERS are students of the Franciscan school of St. John's Indian Mission, south of Phoenix, Ariz., and represent the Apache, Navajo, Papagos and Pimas tribes.

Long years of training have qualified these young Indians to perform their ancient tribal dances with skills of the old Indian past. They are done just as they were before the Spanish conquistadores came to the Southwest.

Attired in dazzling costumes of brilliant red, blue and yellow that they have made themselves, the Indians open with the famed and fierce Apache War Dance, as done by warriors of the past before going into battle. They shift swiftly to the Horsetail Dance, giving a lively imitation of the wild horse, the Indians' best friend. Then, the Eagle Dance, the ancient prayer for rain, in which they glide about flapping the wings of the mighty Thunderbird, or American Eagle, sending their petitions aloft to the rain god.

THE EXTREMELY difficult and intricate Hoop Dance follows, in which the Indian uses, simultaneously, six hoops. It is done to impress the young brave's future bride and her people.

The wild Snake Dance is next. Then, the graceful Feather Dance in which the Indians dance about a feather which must be picked up by mouth, without use of hands. They conclude with Rain, Buffalo, Victory and Farewell dances.

The Indians have danced before President Dwight Eisenhower, the late President John F. Kennedy, the late Pope John, and many other notables, and in the capitals of Europe. In the United States they have danced at summer festivals, conventions, before civic clubs, and many television stations. They have entertained at both the New York and the Seattle world's fairs.

THEIR TOURS have been under U.S. government and armed forces sponsorship.

As the young dancers graduate from the Franciscan school, other youths who have been in training for years take their place.

The graduates of St. John's may go on to college, enter the service, or work at the skilled crafts they have learned at the school.

THE APACHE War Dance is one of 11 spectacular Indian tribal dances to be performed by the troupe from St. John's Indian Mission School in Arizona at San Miguel Mission, Calif., during a five-day stand opening on the Fourth of July.

Beastiality To Beasts

ORDEAL OF THE ANIMALS by Mel Morse; Prentice-Hall, 212 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

A terrible tale well told, is terrible nonetheless.

In "Ordeal of the Animals," author Mel Morse tells a terrible tale of needless suffering by just about every species of domesticated animal in America, plus some wildlife.

The Marin reader may feel an added impact from personally knowing the author. Morse, longtime executive director for the Marin County Humane Society, has been a familiar figure in Marin County schools, civic functions and public affairs.

He is now president of the Humane Society of the United States, a job involving crusading on a national level to correct the cruelties that fill the pages of "Ordeal."

Nearly every reader has at times been exposed to stories exposing inhumane treatment of one or another type of animal, but seldom has one volume covered such a scope of man's beastiality to beasts.

Coming to publication at this hour, a time of great men done violently to death and record-high tides of violent crime in the U. S., Morse's book cannot help but reinforce the shuddering doubts of thinkers who glance sideways at mirrors and wonder about the emotional well-being of our society.

If scientists and university intellectuals can walk unmoved among the laboratory horrors Morse describes, if mass media can glorify bull-fights and make horse-racing seem wonderful, if "sportsmen" can find cock-fights, dog-fights and neglect or mistreatment of hunting dogs normal, if riding stables can do the things Morse describes, why wonder at man's willingness to assassinate or war?

Most Marinites enjoy rodeos — but may not after they read Morse's views.

Many ordeals Morse describes are remote from the average reader's experience. Among these are the laboratories where he says ghastly experiments are repeated far more often than needed to add to scientific knowledge, the commercial horrors of the slaughterhouse and the livestock auction, the dognaper and the appalling farms where mares are kept constantly pregnant so their urine may be collected to make estrogen for milady's face cream.

One thing the reader should understand is that Morse, in concentrating on cruelties, sometimes tars with a broad brush. Don't decide that the ordeals Morse describes are performed by every rancher, that every show poodle is fed arsenic so it will grow coat or that every veterinarian crops dogs' ears or tails just for the Yankee dollar.

Hitting closer to home, Morse tears into elementary and high school classrooms where teachers lead children in experiments on cats and other animals literally stolen by pupils on teachers' instructions. The science fair project is held up for inspection, too, in cases involving needlessly cruel starvation of animals, ineptly performed student surgery and other inhumane treatment that does not truly add to knowledge in any way.

The commercial riding stable beloved of the little girls and the weekend Wild Bill Cody and his lady come in for their share of exposure.

So do Mr. and Mrs. Suburbanite, who allow their dogs and cats to generate a constant population explosion — although in my mind, Morse treads too lightly if at all on the toes of those who create the greatest and most pressing problem in living with animals in Marin.

I refer to the person who argues that he or she lives in the "country" so the children may have pets, and who insists that the family dog or cat be allowed to roam "free" to dirty neighbors' lawns, chase birds and wild animals, bite others' children and pets, and get into tragic trouble in traffic.

Admittedly, Morse's book seems to be concerned with evils that need correction on a national or state level, but I wish he could have impressed on the reader the inhumaneness of allowing pets to roam unsupervised, and the advantages of leash law and proper home care for pets.

"Ordeal of the Animals" is good reading for those who can withstand the sometimes wrenching emotional impact of the cruelties it unfolds — some readers will be too squeamish. The style is straightforward, simple, and naturally, a bit humorless, though not stuffy.

Craft Calls For Care In Reading

PRINTS FROM LINOBLOCKS AND WOODCUTS by Manly Bainister; Sterling, 76 pages. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

With this, one of a series of craft books, you can learn, by careful reading and with proper toil, how to make your own Christmas cards or indulge in art for art's sake.

If you are adept at this sort of thing, have a flair for the arty and have good hand and eye coordination you have it made. The directions are exact, and are illustrated. You are told how to prepare blocks, cut them, ink them, make and use a print press, how to produce prints in black and white and color, and how to get many combinations and textures with the fewest blocks.

On the other hand you may wind up with punctured hands, broken nails and an allergy to printer's ink.

Thomas Henry Set Example For A Remarkable Family

THE HUXLEYS by Ronald W. Clark; McGraw-Hill, 373 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

There has never been a family quite like the Huxleys. For three and four generations they have been producing men of genius, led of course by Thomas Henry, "Darwin's bulldog," Sir Julian and the celebrated author Aldous Huxley.

Even more remarkable, it is commonplace for a Huxley to stand in the first rank not only in his chosen field of science or art, but for philosophical and humanistic achievements as well.

Perhaps it was his conviction that science and art are but two sides of the same coin that was T.H.'s greatest contribution to the ensuing generations of Huxleys. At any rate, his hosts of talented and influential descendants have amply demonstrated this unusual ability to mingle the arts and sciences.

Although this handsomely produced book (there are 16 pages of unusually fine photographs) is the history of all the Huxleys, the stories of the three great men all but take over the book.

The author is at his best with the founder, Thomas Henry, whose seemingly boundless energy and enthusiasm reflect the whole unquenchable Victorian era.

Known today largely for his popularizing of the Theory of Evolution, he was also a great physician, biologist, fearless educational administrator and pioneer (his scientific lectures for working men were standing room only hits) and a devoted father to his large family.

But it was two of his many grandsons, the brothers Julian and Aldous, who seemed to have inherited most of his brilliance. Evidently in the interests of chronology, the author tells their colorful careers in alternate chapters, and constantly intersperses thumbnail sketches of the coming and going from honor to high place of the many lesser relatives.

Unfortunately, it is a wearying device. One is jumped from Sir Julian's fascinating innovations at the London Zoo to the considerable achievements of cousin Gervase, to Aldous' adventures in Hollywood, on to the Eckerley brothers' (Huxley grandsons) experiments with radar.

There appears to be just too much to say about too many distinguished Huxleys, try as Clark does to sort them all out.

He does better summing them up:

"What qualities would one expect to find permeating these strata of lesser-known Huxleys? First of all, no doubt, dedicated devotion to truth, however disagreeable . . . One might also expect to find at least some reflection of that central belief of T.H. that science and art are but two aspects of the same thing . . . scientists appreciative of the humanities, philosophers with a leaning toward science, men or women in that border country between technology and entertainment.

"One might also expect to find, permeating the Huxley atmosphere, a conspective approach to the world and its problems; with at time the unspoken assumption that Huxleys are rather better fitted than the rest of mankind to carry the burden of solving these problems . . .

"The record runs up to expectations."

Rural Jersey, Urban New York

THE PINE BARRENS by John McPhee; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 157 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

New Jersey's vast pine tract, surrounded by centers of dense population, is threatened with damaging development, but this book is much more than a conservationist's call to arms.

McPhee presents a charming combination of biological, economic and historical facts about a most unusual section of our country. He is able to shift gears from homespun tales of the charming people to botanical data on the unique flora of the Pine Barrens without any interruption in his smooth narrative.

Historically, McPhee tells how loyalists hid in the Pine Barrens during the Revolution, how swamp iron processed in forges of the pines supplied ordnance in the war of 1812, and how the pines were a major entry for vital goods during blockades.

McPhee shows the devastating result a proposed jetport would have on the Pines and its few citizens, but his book is not a lecture on the evils of development.

Even if urbanization should wipe out the pines, McPhee's book will remain as a valuable account on what they once were. Perhaps the desire to get it all down before it is too late was what motivated this readable and unusual book.

MY HEART'S IN THE HEATHER by Seon Manley; Funk and Wagnalls, 188 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

"My Heart's in the Heather," is a kind of a Scottish version of one of Harry Golden's books about growing up in New York City.

Seon Manley and her sister Gogo lived in a Scottish colony in the heart of New York which the author describes as an "island of friendship."

Although their section of the city was also inhabited by the Irish, the Scots of Mrs. Manley's childhood clung to their highland ways to the delight of the little girl.

There was some disparity in her own home though, because her grandfather was all Scot and her grandmother all American.

They raised the girls after the death of their mother.

Mama, as the girls called the grandmother, did not have much use for Scottish ways but she was unable to discourage Seon from dreaming of being a "maiden of the moor."

The book makes very pleasant summer reading and is a happy excursion into a world most of us didn't know existed.

When The Public Figures Came To The Kansas College Campus

By DON KEOWN

ISSUES 1968 edited by William W. Boyer; University Press of Kansas, paperback, 139 pages, $1.95.

Searching our memory, we can recall attending only one address by a visiting public figure on the campus of the University of Kansas at Lawrence during our four years there — that by Harold Stassen.

Certainly Kansas State University at nearby Manhattan was the scene of no greater activity of that kind.

"Issues 1968," a paperback book, provides something of a measure of the explosive growth in political awareness and activity that has taken place in a generation on our campuses, even in the conservative Midwest where there is a tendency to lag.

The book is a collection of eight major speeches delivered at Kansas State University over a period of two school years, 1966-68.

The lecturers: Norman Cousins, Sen. J. William Fulbright, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Rev. Martin Luther King, former Gov. Alfred M. Landon, Ralph McGill, Gov. Ronald Reagan and Gov. George Romney. It's an impressive roster.

All were on the national news-making level. And the eight addresses alone constitute far greater exposure to issues and problems of the day than we encountered in all four years at Lawrence. No wonder today's college students are so emotionally concerned, so keenly interested, so actively involved. No doubt they are a great deal more knowledgeable, too, than they are credited with being by their elders who judge them from the maturity standards of their own time.

Some of the lectures, as edited by William W. Boyer, are outstanding. Fulbright and Kennedy were devastating in their attacks upon the administration's Vietnam policies, with the latter, surprisingly, the more effective, and demonstrating why so many young people identified passionately with him and his principles.

Dr. King was eloquent as always in his appraisal of America's racial dilemma and in his appeal for social justice.

Governor Reagan was in top form as he defended his program for higher education in California and spoke up generally for conservative thinking. True, some Californians might have difficulty recognizing the rosy picture he painted of his first months in office. But it was a persuasive example of the Reagan charisma.

Governor Romney, unfortunately, sounded more like he was addressing grammar school students than collegians as he expounded in simplistic terms upon the need for greater participation from the affluent in the development of the poorer countries. Cousins, on the other hand, speaking on "The Age of Acceleration," seemed to be reaching too high in order to justify his reputation as a spokesman for the intelligensia. In print, at least, he sounds excessively pontifical. Editor McGill was none too successful in explaining 'the emerging South" and its politics, but that is a difficult undertaking, especially since the emergence has still not reached a point where shape is discernible.

Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential candidate, was a disappointment. A refreshing surprise in a recent television interview, he was apparently much less at ease before the university audience. His talk turned out to be a rambling affair about international relations, replete with contradictions.

Notably missing from the speaker list was any representation from the administration.

Generally, however, the lectures provided the college students with an excellent summarization of the lively dialogue of the middle and late 1960s about our national aspirations. For book readers now, it can serve as a quick refresher text in preparation for the November election. Among the more thoughtful, too, it will reawaken pangs, pointing out as it does the national and global loss incurred in the murders of Senator Kennedy and Dr. King in the silencing of their articulate expression of their controversial but cogent views.

HEADING THE July list of paperbacks from Ballantine are "Alamein and the Desert War," an original collection of accounts of the great World War II tank battle by Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery and others, edited by Derek Jewell, and a reprint of the Borden Deal novel, "The Loser."

BRANDON HOUSE of North Hollywood has published as a $1.25 paperback "Dawn of Doubt," a tract reviewing the evidence in one of Southern California's most sensational murder cases of the 1960s and asserting the innocence of the man convicted of the killings.

MARTIN LUTHER KING
Two of the voices . . .

ROBERT F. KENNEDY
. . . have been silenced

The victims were Elaine Kirschke, a successful dress designer, and her "boy friend," Bill Drankhan. The accused and the convicted was her husband, Jack. And what made the case most unusual was that Jack Kirschke was deputy assistant district attorney in Downey where the slaying occurred.

James Judd, ex-newspaper man and private investigator, is the author of the book which purports to offer new, "never before published" evidence creating "more than a reasonable doubt" as to Kirschke's guilt.

The so-called new evidence, however, is not as persuasive as the review of the old in arousing doubts as to whether justice has been served in the case. Since Kirschke was sentenced to death, it also furnishes some argumentative ammunition for opponents of capital punishment.

The book apparently has been hastily written and hurriedly edited and assembled. Despite those circumstances, it is rather effective. Albert C. S. Ramsey, Kirschke's defense trial attorney, has written a foreword, predicting his client's exoneration. And George T. Davis, now representing Kirschke, has appended a postscript.

MARKING the 11th printing of "My Religion" by the late Helen Keller is a newly-designed paperback edition with introduction by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, newly published by the Swedenborg Foundation Inc.

First published in 1927, the book contains the magnificent Miss Keller's statement of her religious faith and beliefs. "I cannot understand why anyone should fear death," she wrote. "Life here is more cruel than death."

Dr. Peale praises her as "the outstanding woman of our generation."

The paperback reprint sells for $1.

A TASTE OF SANGRIA by Carlton Keith; Doubleday, 192 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Professional handwriting expert Jeff Green is employed to hunt down an accountant who has disappeared with a fortune.

Soon, however, Green finds his sympathy is with the accountant, rather than his employer. A pretty girl has something to do with that. So does the employer's shady background.

Things get rough and there is a murder. The pace picks up, and the scene shifts from America to Europe. Finally, there is a well constructed, rather ingenious climax in Spain.

Keith's writing seemed a bit stiff and uncertain at the outset. But either he improved, or this reader became accustomed to his style. Anyway, the sentences began to flow more smoothly and more naturally, and the yarn wound up in our estimation as one of the better Crime Club Selections to date this year.

Assassination By The Amateurs

THE DESPERATE ACT by Roberta Strauss Feuerlicht; McGraw-Hill, 175 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

At this sad period in history, "assassination" is a particularly ugly and sinister word.

It is hard to realize, then, that at times in the past assassins have been heralded as heroes or martyrs.

This is all the more difficult to comprehend when the slaying touched off a war that was, at that time, the bloodiest and most destructive conflict in mankind's violent history.

But the six young men who set out to murder Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand and succeeded despite a series of incredibly amateurish blunders were hailed as patriots and as heroes by their fellow Bosnians and many other sympathizers.

Roberta Strauss Feuerlicht tells the story of the Sarajevo assassination that triggered World War I in her "The Desperate Act."

Almost everyone remembers from his history studies that it was the slaying of the heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne (and his wife) in Sarajevo that unleashed the horrors of war upon the European continent. But many of the circumstances and the details have been obscured by the passing of the years. Mrs. Feuerlicht dispells those clouds with her small, simply written, personally researched piece of popular history.

She sets the volatile stage for the desperate act in which not one, but six potential assassins, all armed with bombs or pistols, awaited the brutish Austrian archduke that day, June 28, 1914, in the Bosnian provincial capital. They hoped to strike a blow for Bosnian freedom from the Austro-Hungarian yoke by slaying the tyrant. Yet Franz Ferdinand rode safely past all six uninjured, thanks to the ineptness and inexperience of his would-be killers. Time ran out for him, however, when one of the youths was offered a second opportunity, and this time succeeded, more by chance than by deliberation.

"The Desperate Act" corrects a lot of faulty history that has grown up through the years, including the thesis that all European states, Allies and Central Powers alike, were equally at fault in the outbreak of the war. True, some responsibility must be borne by all. But Mrs. Feuerlicht points the finger of guilt at the chief culprit, and it is, not Germany, but her Austro-Hungarian ally.

It was in Vienna that militarists, impatient with a weak and aged emperor, awaited eagerly the slightest excuse to send their armies into little Serbia, long a thorn in their sides. Serbia's connection with the assassination was most dubious. Still, she tried to appease her larger, aggressive neighbor. But assured of Germany's support, the Austrians went to war. Soon most of Europe was involved.

Ironically, little Serbia outfought the Austro-Hungarian invaders, and only German intervention saved its ally from quick defeat and total disgrace.

Mrs. Feuerlicht preceded the writing of her book with a number of visits to Yugoslavia, of which both Serbia and Bosnia are a part today. There she talked to one of the two unrepentant survivors of the awkwardly plotted and executed assassination.

While in these dark and restless days it is difficult to applaud even the most highly motivated political murder, Mrs. Feuerlicht must be credited with performing a historical service in clarifying a record muddied by time and bias with a book that is interesting, easily read and seemingly objective.

UN-HITCH THAT WAGON, WOMAN!

I used to watch stars, in an August sky,
Fall in a shower and wonder, "Why?"
But tonight a star fell as a lonely, lost beacon,
And, it's only June—what could be the reason?

I suspect this unseasonal tumble has meaning—
It knew Friend and I would be gazing, not seeing.
Its spark was a warning . . . star gazing is just
As lasting as stars that fall in August.

Were the gods shooting darts on Olympus
The night that you were born,

Orphaned 10 children,
Bereaved a world of a Man,

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

ALBINONI, GEMINIANI, KREBS, MARCELLO, QUANTZ — "Sonatas for Flute and Harpsichord" — Jean-Pierre Rampal/Kenneth Gilbert — Baroque Records 2878; W. F. BACH, PEPUSCH, LOEILLET, TELEMANN — "Trio Sonatas" — Jean-Pierre Rampal/Gilbert/-Mario Duschenes, flute and recorder — Baroque Records 2879:

The world's most-recorded flutist has two magnificent LPs here again, and at bargain prices. Several of these selections are catalog firsts or at least stereo firsts.

The sonata by Johann Krebs is interesting since it gives the giant share to the harpsichord, reducing the poor flute to a parallel part, a third or sixth below. It often seems that the uniqueness of each composer of the Baroque is more clearly heard in music for just a few instruments rather than in works for small orchestra. Compare the Telemann and the W. F. Bach in the second album, for example.

Good stereo.

TELEMANN, VIVALDI, ROSETTI—"Concerti for Horn(s) and Orchestra"—Penzel/Spach/Roth/Schollinger/Balser / Mainz and Wurttemberg Chamber Orchestras/Gunter Kehr and Jorg Faerber—Turnabout TV 34078S:

It took great skill and fortitude both to compose for and to perform upon the horn in the Baroque period because valves had not yet been developed and the instrument could play only the natural harmonic scale. While this limited the notes that could be used in compositions for horn and orchestra, there is still much delightful horn music from this period, and recently it is appearing more widely on records.

The Telemann work is a suite in F Major for four horns and orchestra and is one of his more humorous and jovial pieces. The Vivaldi piece is a concerto for two horns and strings and is, as expected, typical Vivaldi. The Rosetti is presented with its first recording here, and shows the so-called "German Boccherini" to be worthy of more attention.

Good stereophonics.

HUMMEL —"Piano Concerto in B Minor"—Martin Galling/Innsbruck Symphony Orchestra/Robert Wagner; HAYDN — "Piano Concerto in D Major" — Alfred Brender/Vienna Chamber Orchestra/Paul Angerer — Turnabout TV 34073S:

The Hummel concerto has been transferred from a Vox recording to this bargain label.

Although Hummel, like Spohr, has long struck this writer as something of a bore, this concerto is at least as good as some of Mozart's. The recording is excellent.

The Haydn is much to be preferred in the harpsichord version over the piano version heard here.

NIELS W. GADE :"Symphony No. in C Minor: On Sjolund's Fair Plains" — The Royale Danish Orchestra/Johan Hye-Knudsen — Turnabout TV 34052S:

Turnabout has been on a Danish kick lately, and it is bringing us a number of never-before-heard compositions from that wonderful Scandinavian area.

Gade wrote his first symphony in 1842, inspired by the beauty of Danish folk songs. It is so unusually enjoyable that one looks forward to hear Turnabout's issuance of the other seven soon.

VORISEK: "Sonata in G Major for Violin and Piano"—Rondo for Snitil, violin/Zorka Zichova, piano — Crossroads 22 16 0120:

Vorisek is one of several Classical and Romantic period composers we have recently "discovered" through recordings from Supraphon in Czechoslovakia.

The mainstream of music passed these Czech masters by, but now recordings are demonstrating that they deserve at least as much attention for their best works as Haydn, Mozart, et al, receive for their lesser efforts.

These two chamber works, written in 1822, are exciting in every way — looking forward to the Romantic era while using the best of Classical methods.

Crossroads' sound is always genuine stereo and good quality. If it is occasionally a bit harsh in the treble, the tone controls easily compensate for this.

SHOSTAKOVITCH: Symphony No. 13 — Vitaly Gromandsky, bass / Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra and Male Chorus/Kiril Kondrashin — Everest 3181:

This is the Shostakovitch symphony that includes the poem by Yevtushenko, "Babi Yar," about the Nazi slaughter of Russian Jews. Because it implies that the present Soviet government is anti-Semitic, the symphony was banned after its premiere.

In 1965 it received a rare performance in Moscow and evidently was taped off the air at that time. It is this mono tape, re-channeled for stereo, that Everest has released completely without the permission of the Soviet Cultural Exchange people. Profits from the record go to the Jewish charity.

The symphony is of epic proportions, as all of the composer's recent symphonies. The Babi Yar poem is in the first section. In the second movement a poem titled "Humor" is employed by the bass and chorus. The third movement uses in the same way a poem, "At the Store," the fourth one titled "Fears," and the final movement "A Career." There are no purely orchestral movements.

The audience sounds are not especially distracting and the re-channeled stereo is acceptable. Complete translations are printed on the album jacket. A very important release, for this symphony will not be coming out on the Angel/Melodiya series, at least in the near future.

The special pleasures of private gardens are at least as old as Nebuchadnezzar and his Babylon.

Other ancients like the leisure-loving Romans also knew a good thing when they saw it. "Tempus fugit," they might have philosophied while unwinding in their high-walled garden retreats after a hard day at the Forum. Today, in outdoor-loving California, the garden room has returned to become a delightful part of contemporary living.

WHETHER YOU have a 60-acre estate or a small city lot, creating a functional and pleasurable mode of outdoor living calls for thoughtful planning of the grounds around the house. The open areas nearest the residence are those most commonly used for decks, patios, lanais, etc. These areas convert into extensions of the house and, with the addition of fencing or privacy screens, become garden rooms.

The redwood garden room is a variation of conventional landscaping techniques.

More versatile than the ordinary landscaped lawn, it uses outdoor areas economically, efficiently, often unusually. It adds living space without reducing outdoor space. It increases the pleasures, not the labors of gardens and gardening. Best of all, a garden room gives you more leisure time outdoors.

A SUCCESSFUL garden room is not happenstance. Plan it carefully with an eye to future as well as present needs.

In planning, also remember that the garden room will remove much of the work load from the interior room or rooms it serves. It will function according to the function of the room to which it is attached.

For instance, if the garden room connects with a bath or bedroom, a primary consideration will be privacy. If it connects with family rooms, a primary consideration will be space extension. If it connects engawa-style with the entrance to the house, a primary consideration will be blocking out street noises and prying eyes.

NO MATTER where the garden room or rooms are located, methods to baffle excess wind and sun should be high on the planning table.

Although building a garden room is not especially difficult, unless you are a handyman beyond the dilletante stage, the safest move is to call in a good contractor or landscape architect. A professional can tell you about cost of materials and labor, what, where and how much to buy, answer technical questions you might have and suggest design improvements.

If the budget is tight, doing part of the work yourself is an excellent way to cut labor expense.

Since you will want the garden room as a place to relax in, not work on, you can minimize future problems and maintenance chores by using kiln-dried redwood.

REDWOOD heartwood is decay, termite and fire resistant. It can be left unfinished or may be finished with a water repellent, bleach or stain. Redwood holds finishes exceptionally well.

If upkeep is minimal, aesthetic values are maximal. To landscape architects and laymen alike, redwood's combination of beauty and durability is synonomous with garden excellence.

The garden room and the green thumb are a compatible duo. If you are an experienced gardener, plants for the room won't pose any problems. Be certain to check out container plants as they are particularly attractive in garden rooms and may be moved around as you please.

The difference between good and excellent garden rooms are the finishing touches which provide ultimate comfort and variety of use.

For furniture, pick redwood lounges and chairs covered with soft cushions in bright-colored canvas. A sturdy redwood table and benches would not be amiss for writing, hobby projects and outdoor meals.

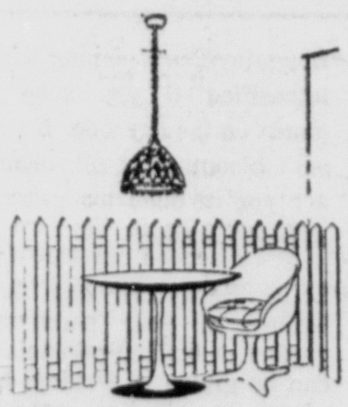
NIGHT LIGHTING is easily and exotically available in Tiki torches, old-fashioned kerosene lamps or candles in wind-proof containers.

For heat and cooking, a prefabricated Scandinavian-type heater is on the market or use several hibachis strategically placed.

AS A LIVING ROOM, this garden room is dominated by the redwood ceiling beams that continue uninterrupted into the indoor living area. The redwood deck is built level with the house floor. A window wall smooths the transition from interior to exterior. (Photo by Leland Lee)

For further information on garden redwood, send 15 cents each for the illustrated booklets "Redwood Garden Shelters," "Redwood at Poolside," "Redwood Decks," and "Redwood Fences," or send 50 cents for a comprehensive package of all four booklets plus assorted how-to-do data sheets to the Service Library, California Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, 94111.

It's Different



A FUN touch for a party room is attained with a wainscot made of picket fencing. You can build it of one-by-four-inch fir or pine boards, using one-by-twos for rails. Paint for contrast with the wall — mocha over yellow, for instance.

Don't Starve Your Plants In The Summer

A Regular Feeding Schedule Will Pay Garden Dividend

Every Marinite knows that watering is a summer-time essential if his lawn and garden are to grow — or even to survive.

Fewer, however, realize the importance of feeding.

And even many of those who do recognize its importance still neglect this phase of their gardening duties.

PERHAPS THAT is because you feed less often than you water, so it is more easily forgotten. You can avoid that by setting up a schedule. Mark your calendar for several months ahead. It will not only serve as a reminder at feeding time, but also as a record of past feedings.

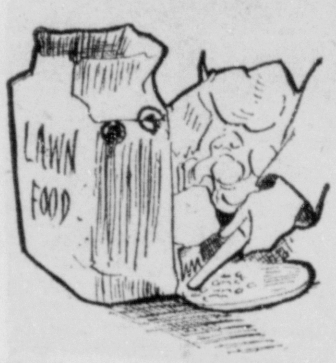
But what do you feed? And when?

To begin with, there is always the lawn. If you didn't do so in June, be sure to do so in July — a good summer feeding will do as much as regular and deep watering to promote a lush green in your grass through the summer drought.

ONE GOOD summer feeding should carry you through to the early fall. Then feed again.

Next in importance are the roses and other shrubs. Some books will tell you to feed roses every four weeks. Marin nurserymen generally say that every six weeks is frequent enough.

At the same time you feed your roses, also apply one of the specially-prepared garden mulches around the bushes. It will conserve moisture and hold down weeds. You will save time by combining the two jobs, and you will make certain that both are taken care of.



SUMMER IS the season when many of your plants stand most in need of feeding. Whether you feed them liquid or dry, pellet or powder, nitrogen or non-nitrogen fertilizer depends upon the shrub or plant. Consult your nurseryman to be certain you make the right choice.

SHRUBS SUCH as the gardenia and the hibiscus can use summer feedings at the same time you take care of your roses.

Shade trees appreciate a summer feeding. Requirements differ for trees of various sizes and varieties. Don't hesitate to ask your nurseryman. He's the expert.

Fuchsias should be fed every three or four weeks, using liquid fish or a specially-prepared shade plant food.

Tuberous begonias like liquid fish. If they are planted in pots, feed them twice a month. If in the ground, once a month.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS like to be fed monthly up until the time the buds show color. Give them one more feeding with your standard fertilizer before mid-July. But after that, switch to a non-nitrogen fertilizer.

Dahlias like frequent feedings in the summer, and they prefer a food not too high in nitrogen.

For other plants and their feeding habits, consult your nurseryman. You can't take it for granted that your plants all need summer feedings. Some few are best off fending for themselves. But most plants do flourish when fertilized. They'll appreciate your attention to that detail in their culture.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Marin soils are unusually hard and dry this summer. So when you water, water deeply, especially around young plants. And where indicated, loosen the soil around the roots.
- Most California native plants prefer summer dryness, so don't feel sorry for them. You can kill them with kindness. These are good plants to consider for "minimum care" gardens.
- If you like red in the garden, plant a bed of Salvia splendens (Scarlet Sage). They're sun-lovers and spectacular performers. You'll find them in the bedding plant sections of nurseries now.
- Bougainvillea blooming will be intensified if you keep the plants on the dry side. If yours isn't blooming at all, chances are you've been too generous with the water.
- Lotus Bertholetti can be a feature of your summer garden. A trailing perennial, it can be grown in a raised bed, where its foliage cascades over the top, or in a hanging basket. It has distinctive gray foliage and orange-red bloom resembling a Parrot's Beak, from whence it derives its popular name.
- Cultivate vegetable and flower beds to get rid of unsightly, moisture-hungry weeds. Or ask about pre-emergent weed controls.

It's Not A Bamboo, But It Is Heavenly

Marinites Find Nandina A Versatile And Attractive Shrub For Gardens

Recently in the pages of this magazine, landscaper Keith Jongewaard suggested that Marin gardeners might not be growing the bamboos best suited to our climate and other growing conditions or to our special needs.

Maybe not.

But the bamboos we do have are doing a big job for Marinites in their gardens.

To complicate the subject, one of those most useful and most used isn't even a bamboo at all. We refer to Heavenly Bamboo, or Nandina. Which, as just about everyone knows by now, is not really a member of the bamboo family at all.

THE FACT THAT Nandina is not actually a bamboo in no way detracts from its usefulness, its versatility or its beauty. Indeed, Nandina is a more graceful, more refined shrub than most of the true bamboos. Its beauty is unsurpassed by any other garden shrub. Few can match it either in versatility.

You see aged plantings of Nandina as a hedge around pre-World War II homes. You find Nandina growing as a specimen focal plant in entry ways. And Nandina looks like it was created to blend with modern architecture.

One of the added attractions of Nandina is its colorful autumn foliage. The bronze color varies with the individual shrub, but you can count on a definite change as soon as the summer weather turns the corner into fall.

NURSERYMEN have long advocated Heavenly Bamboo as a foundation shrub. Its height makes it good, too, for planting against walls and fences.

You'll also find that Heavenly Bamboo will take partial shade, making it adaptable to many difficult planting situations.

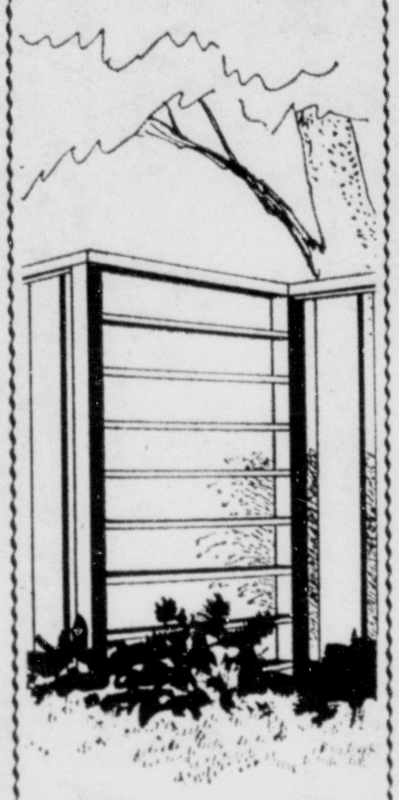
A dwarf Nandina is available at many nurseries. Its arrival on the scene has been the answer to gardener's prayers for a low-grower to highlight today's semi-tropical garden trend.

The dwarf Nandina is compact growing and may be used in massed plantings. Growing waist-high, planted individually it serves as interesting focal point.

AN EVEN lower-growing Heavenly Bamboo is available now at some nurseries. As have its elders, this pygmy-proportioned Heavenly Bamboo will find a multitude of uses in landscape design.

As for when to plant, anytime is planting time for the Nandina — including right now.

A Fence Tnat Jogs



A STRAIGHT line fence in the backyard can be an awful bore. But with a bit of imagination, that fence can be transformed into a landscape asset. One idea: Put a "jog" in your fence by adding a pleasant pattern change with horizontal one-by-four boards, set edge out. The main sections of the fence shown above are one-by-six boards nailed vertically between top and bottom rails.
